

Government disbanded in financially troubled town

WATERTOWN, Wis. (AP) — In 1853 officials of this southeastern Wisconsin town had a money problem like New York City has today — whopping debts and not enough money to pay them.

But what Watertown did to solve the problem New York probably would never do: they simply disbanded elected government for ten years.

In effect, the mayor and aldermen hid out to avoid bondholders and court judgments.

Watertown, a rail center with a population of 7,500, was one of the largest cities in Wisconsin when voters approved an $80,000 bond issue in 1853 to aid the Watertown Railroad Co., the first of several bond issues to aid railroads.

Although the deals carried second mortgages on the railroads' property, the mortgages were of little help when the speculators who held the bonds began demanding payment.

By 1878, Watertown's indebtedness, including principal, interest and court judgments, had reached a whopping $750,000. The entire assessed value of the community was little more than a million dollars.

The townspeople were incensed, and repudiation of the bonds became the major political issue.

"I don't care a damn for all the railroads and all the bondholders in the country," an unnamed candidate for mayor said at the time. He was elected.

But not for long, since Watertown's solution left the city virtually without a government as officials sought to escape process servers. This is how it worked:

Shortly after annual elections in April, the city clerk prepared three sets of documents: the elected officials' qualification papers, documents authorizing essential city services until the next election, and a set of resignations, ready for signature.

The elected officials then qualified, authorized needed city operations and resigned, and when marshals came to town to serve papers on the officials, they found none.

History records several attempts at higher levels of government to make Watertown pay off the defaulted bonds: a state law authorizing a local tax to liquidate the debts and a suit initiated by a disgruntled Illinois bondholder that reached the U.S. Supreme Court.

But Watertown ignored the former and the Supreme Court declined to act on the bondholder's suit to force payment. Watertown celebrated that development with a civic bond-burning ceremony.

Today Watertown is a prosperous farming and business community of 15,000 on the main line of the Milwaukee Road. An Amtrak passenger train stops daily, and hardly anyone recalls the city's early troubles with railroads and bonds.

Spain restores monarchy

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon was sworn in today as King Juan Carlos I, restoring monarchy to Spain after 44 years. He immediately pledged to be a friend of the people, a foe of privilege and a "promotor of justice."

Choking back emotion as he stood in the main chamber of parliament with foreign dignitaries on either side, including U.S. Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, the 37-year-old Juan Carlos took his oath of office by placing his right hand on a Bible held by parliament President Alejandro Rodriguez de Valcarlos.

Juan Carlos swore to uphold the principles of the regime of Gen. Francisco Franco, who died Thursday at 82 after ruling Spain for 36 years.

Juan Carlos' wife, Princess Sophie of Greece, sat beside him. The couple's three children sat at their left. On their right, a crown and scepter lay symbolically on a velvet-covered stool.

The new queen wore a classic full-length dress of pink satin. Her hands, twisting a handkerchief, trembled as her husband took his oath with the words: "I swear by God and the Holy Gospel to comply with the fundamental laws of the kingdom and to loyally guard the principles that formed the national Movement," Spain's only political organization and heir to the Fascist-style Falange that helped Franco to power in 1939.

With the installation of Juan Carlos as king, his 7-year-old son Felipe became prince of Spain and heir to the throne. Dressed in a blue double-breasted suit, the boy sat quietly during the ceremony, swinging a leg from time to time.

In a 15-minute speech, loudly applauded by the chamber, the new king pledged to be the guardian of "peace, work and prosperity" and declared: "Monarchy will try at every moment to keep in closest touch with the people."

Juan Carlos brought the deputies to their feet as he promised to restore "territorial integrity" to Spain, a clear reference to the nation's claim of sovereignty over the British crown colony of Gibraltar. "The king takes over this objective with the fullest of convictions," he said.

In a reference to Spain's continued exclusion from the European Common Market, Juan Carlos said: "The idea of Europe is incomplete without the presence of Spain and without consideration to what many of my predecessors did. Europe must count upon Spain.... Let both sides understand this."

cheers outside of "long live the king!" and began a triumphant ride through the city.

Inside the chamber, after the king left, right-wing deputies, two-thirds of them handpicked by Franco, turned as a body toward the former strong man's daughter, Carmen, seated in the front row of the gallery, and shouted: "Long live Franco! Long live Franco!"

An hour and a half after he became king, Juan Carlos and his queen paid public homage to Franco, standing before his coffin in the National Palace as mourners filed past. After a moment's reflection, the prince moved to the side of the coffin and knelt in prayer.

Tens of thousands of Spaniards lined up outside the palace today to file past Franco's body as it lay in state.

Police estimated that more than 140,000 persons passed through the ornate "Hall of Columns" in the 24 hours since its doors opened at 8:00 a.m. Friday. They said another 200,000 waited outside in the streets, packed throughout the night.

Scores of foreign dignitaries, including U.S. Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, listened from balconies on either side of the chamber as the prince made his first address to the nation as king.

Thousands of Spaniards cheered wildly as the prince, accompanied by a limousine and motorcycle escort, drove to the Cortes in a black Rolls Royce shortly after midday and reviewed a military honor guard.

Princess Sophie and the couple's three children joined the future king at the main entrance, under a huge red canopy, and walked with him into the main chamber.

Accompanying the royal family were the three members of the interim Council of Regency, who had ruled Spain since Franco's death early Thursday.

Police clamped unprecedented security on Madrid for the installation, the first since Juan Carlos' grandfather Alfonso XIII became Spain's last king in 1902. Alfonso left Spain in 1931, bowing to a sweeping tide of Republican pressure.

In addition to Rockefeller, other foreign dignitaries included Jordan's King Hussein, Chilean President Augusto Pinochet, Prince Rainier of Monaco and Imelda Marcos, first lady of the Philippines.

They will attend Franco's state funeral Sunday at the Valley of the Fallen, a huge underground basilica 35 miles from Madrid.

Franco had the $200-million monument carved out of the side of a mountain in memory of those who died in the bloody civil war of 1936-39.

Warfare rips Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Warfare between Christians and Moslems engulfed two-thirds of this Arab capital today and Premier Rashid Karami warned that Lebanon "is on the brink of total collapse."

Mortars, rockets and heavy machine guns traded fire in Beirut's eastern and northern districts. Snipers terrorized the downtown commercial center and armed men manned sandbag barricades in residential neighborhoods and outlying suburbs.

Security officials said 36 persons were killed, 76 wounded and 150 kidnaped by both sides in the past 24 hours — the highest casualty toll in three days of escalating hostilities which plunged Lebanon into another round of civil war.

Karami told an ineffectual cease-fire committee the nation faces bankruptcy, unemployment and famine "and I'm afraid to say there is no one among us who is innocent any more."

He conceded the government was helpless to control private armies of Christian and Moslem militiamen and blamed their political leaders for re-summing the conflict, now in its eighth month.

"Either you cannot control your men or you don't want to," he said. "If Islam allows murder then I don't want to be a Moslem. If Christianity allows killing, then I am against Christianity. We have reached zero level and even slipped below it in every aspect of life."

Karami pointed out that the government had tried to reassert control during a three-week lull and formed a 300-man strike force of army troops and internal security men to prevent a resumption of fighting.

"But you opened fire on it and killed one trooper," he complained to the militia leaders.

Witnesses said the strike force gave up its cease-fire patrols and pulled out of combat zones after suffering one dead and two wounded late Friday night.

The collapse of the cease-fire coincided with the 34th anniversary of Lebanese independence from French rule. And it underlines the difficulties facing a French mediation effort by former Premier Maurice Couve de Murville, who is now consulting with Lebanese leaders and Palestinian guerrillas.

President Suleiman Franjeh cancelled an independence day speech previously announced by Beirut state radio. Franjeh, a Christian, has spent most of the civil war silently sequestered in the safety of his palace at Baabda, leaving it up to his Moslem premier to try to end the conflict.

$200 million tax hike seen in NYC

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The New York state legislature appears ready to approve $200 million in New York City tax increases today as a key element in a plan to win federal aid to avoid a default by the city.

After breaking a two-day deadlock on which tax increases to impose, the legislature was expected to act on the measures today.

Aides to legislative leaders said the votes needed to pass the measures were lined up Friday evening but the leaders decided to wait for resolutions by the City Council and Board of Estimate in New York calling for the taxes.

The action came early today when the City Council voted 23 to 14 to approve and send to Albany a resolution requesting a $205 million package that would levy new taxes and raise some old ones.

The council resolution was not needed for legislative passage of the taxes but the legislators wanted the council on record as requesting the package so its members would have to share voter displeasure.

The tax measures, which will hit everything from haircuts and cigarettes to weight-reducing salons, are the main part of Gov. Hugh Carey's effort to get the Ford administration to back some form of federal loan guarantees or other aid to save the city from default.

Mayor Abraham D. Beame lauded the council as having "acted responsibly in the face of federal indications for tax legislation as a prerequisite for federal assistance to avert default and meet critical city needs."

"I realize that this action required much soul searching and thought, but was undertaken to avert a worse alternative."

The other element in the plan is legislation to effectively cut the pay of city employees by $42 million over the first six months of 1976 by forcing them to pick up what the city has been contributing to their pension fund.

Carey says he needs Ford administration support to tie together a $6.6 billion plan to refinance most of the city's short-term debt accumulated through years of hidden budget deficits.

Part of the financing, under Carey's plan, would be backed by some sort of federal guarantee or loan, while the rest comes from a combination of city employee pension fund assets, bank rollovers of city obligations and a moratorium on $1.6 billion of the city's debt to individual note-holders. The note-holders have the option of exchanging their notes for long-term securities.

The legislature approved the moratorium last week.

Ford administration officials reportedly have insisted the state approve the new city taxes to close at least part of the city's admitted $764 million deficit in the fiscal year ending next June 30.

In return, Ford administration officials say they may consider federal involvement in the $6.6 billion plan. However, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Friday, "I wouldn't count on it," in reference to administration approval of federal aid.

"I just want to see what actions are taken and we will make our judgments then," Simon said of the legislature's "emergency" session.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A concern over the state's thinning pocketbook has helped make Gov. Daniel Walker the victor in major budget battles fought in the Illinois General Assembly's fall session.

The governor's biggest victory came when the legislature turned back attempts to restore $116.7 million of the $142 million he cut from school aid appropriations. That battle ended Friday in the Senate when two key override votes came up short.

The House narrowly voted two weeks ago to restore $81 million in direct aid to local schools and $35.7 million for a variety of special education grants. However, in the Senate, where 30 votes were needed, the override motions received only 26 and 24 votes respectively.

Walker, who had insisted the cuts were needed to avoid a tax increase or a budget deficit, called the Senate's action "a great victory for all the overburdened taxpayers of Illinois."

But before the legislature adjourned for the year, it had stripped the governor of control of the Illinois State Fair, created a board of doctors to discipline physicians and enacted a new strict abortion law—all over Walker's objections.

Proponents of the school aid override, supported by a coalition of educators, labor leaders and local officials, offered gloomy predictions for schools, which they said had been counting on the full appropriation made by the legislature last spring.

"It is going to be a tragedy for this state," said Sen. Thomas Hynes, D-Chicago, the Senate sponsor of the override attempt.

Citing increasingly depressed economic conditions, Walker asked the General Assembly in June to trim six per cent from all general revenue budget items.

In those areas where the legislature refused to cut, Walker used his veto power to reduce the items, and he was upheld in virtually all cases.

The only major spending veto overridden by the General Assembly was $17 million which will be spread throughout the state for use by local governments in their road programs. The money comes from motor fuel taxes, however, and not from the general revenue fund.

The controversial school aid issue pitted Walker against political rival Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, who made a rare personal appearance before the legislature two weeks ago to urge an override.

The override fight was led by lawmakers loyal to Daley, but opposition by a solid block of Republicans and a handful of downstate Democrats was sufficient to sustain the governor's action.

In matters that didn't involve spending money, however, the Fromme testimony uncertain

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The defense in Lynette Fromme's trial on charges of trying to assassinate President Ford has run into an obstacle — Miss Fromme's apparent refusal to testify.

After calling a half dozen witnesses Friday and attacking only a few elements of the prosecution's case, defense attorney John Virga said he will rest his case unless Miss Fromme takes the stand.

Summoned from her cell into court, the slender, red-haired defendant said she would make up her mind by Monday.

Outside the court, Virga said Miss Fromme had told him "if she cannot have the Manson family here, she doesn't want to testify."

Miss Fromme, a disciple of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson, has demanded that Manson be allowed to participate in the trial. She has boycotted the trial because of the judge's refusal.

The prosecution contends Miss Fromme was trying to kill Ford.

U.N. promotes Communism

The charter of the United Nations was signed June 26, 1945 at San Francisco. The secretary general for the San Francisco Conference was named at Yalta, Alger Hiss, a member of the State Department. There were 18 important Americans to formulate this organization on the American side. At a later date 17 were discovered to be Communists.

John D. Rockefeller III gives a check of $8.5 million to Trygve Lie to buy the land that now serves as headquarters for the United Nations. U Thant of Burma was put in charge of the United Nations by the Communists. He did everything he could to the disadvantage of the United States. He accused Rhodesia and South Africa of many false charges. Not once did he mention the people killed in Russia or China.

The United Nations was organized to promote Communists. They are the enemies of peace, freedom and prosperity. Should we stay with such a group? If not, write your congressmen and tell them your thoughts. Perhaps you can get Congress to resign from the United Nations and ask them to move their headquarters to Russia. It would relieve the taxpayers, for the money the government has spent with the United Nations has been a detriment to many people who are not communists.

The Johnson Act declared that no private person or corporation can lend money or buy or sell securities of any foreign government which has defaulted on its debts to the United States government.

Then how do American companies sell to Russia or Cuba, and collect from the United States taxpayers when the communists do not pay.

"If you are not governed by God, you will be ruled by tyrants" ... William Penn.

During Stalin's terror there were about 20 to 25 million people sentenced to concentration camps. Most people could not live on the small portions of bad food and died in these cold, unsanitary conditions. A few of the strong-willed people survived and lived to write what they endured.

Today thousands of men and women languish in concentration camps because of their faith in God. The Communists are determined to destroy all religions.

This alone should turn Americans away from Communists and everything they stand for.

The United States government has allowed the Communists to build the United Nations with American taxpayers' money.

Why does the United States government allow the United Nations the privilege of bringing in hundreds of spies to move wherever they want in the United States, Canada, Mexico and South America?

There are hundreds of concentration camps in Russia with 4 or 5 million prisoners, sentenced on the slightest pretext.

Citizens, the least you can do is write your Congressmen to withdraw America from the United Nations and request them to transfer to Moscow.

Things Dixon Talked About

25 YEARS AGO

Five of the six Dixon cagers will start in tonight's game when Clinton High School of Iowa invades the Dukes gym. The Dukes will be out to avenge the defeat Clinton handed them last year, and also to open the 1950 cage season with an impressive victory. The six are Dan Heck, Jim Mercer, Wayne Hufford, Kelly Kappler, Floyd Acker and Bill Lafferty.

The Dixon Police Department will get its much-needed new police car following City Council action last night. The mayor announced that a check on the budget for the remainder of the year reveals that by cutting down on some expenditures the city can afford a new police car—if it is a low-priced one. The council will advertise for bids for a new squad car.

Legacy of monstrous terror

By Aleksandr I. Solzhenitsyn

It is an astonishing phenomenon that Communism has been writing about itself in the most open way for 125 years. And even more openly, more candidly in the beginning. The Communist Manifesto, for instance, which everyone knows by name, and which almost no one ever takes the trouble to read, contains even more terrible things than what have actually been done. The whole world can read, everyone is literate, but somehow no one wants to understand.

I think it isn't only a question of the disguises which Communism has assumed in the last decades. It's rather that the essence of Communism is quite beyond the limits of human understanding. It's hard to believe that people could actually plan such things and carry them out. And precisely because its essence is beyond comprehension, Communism is so difficult to understand. But it is most important to understand the essence of this ideology, and above all its legacy of monstrous terror, which hasn't changed at all in 125 years.

But what is amazing is that apart from all their books, Communism has offered a multitude of examples for modern man to see. The tanks have rumbled through Budapest. It is nothing. The tanks roar into Czechoslovakia. It is nothing. No one else would have been forgiven but Communism can be excused. With some kind of strange deliberation, as though God wanted to punish them by taking away their reason, the Communists erected the Berlin wall.

Has the Berlin wall convinced anyone? No, again. It's being ignored. It's there, but it doesn't affect us. We'll never have a wall like that. And the tanks in Budapest and Prague, they won't come here either. On all the borders of the Communist countries, the European ones in any case, you can find electronic killing devices. These are automatic devices for killing anyone who goes across. But people here say: "That doesn't threaten us either, we are not afraid of that."

In the Communist countries they have a developed system of forced treatment in insane asylums. That's nothing. We're living quietly. Three times a day—right at this very moment—the doctors are making their rounds and injecting substances into peoples' arms that destroy their brains. Pay no attention to it. We'll continue to live in peace and quiet here.

The question of war is also well elucidated in Communist and Marxist literature. Let me show you how Communism regards the question of war. I quote Lenin: "We cannot support the slogan 'Peace' since we regard it as a totally muddled one and hindrance to the revolutionary struggle." This is Communism's view of war. War is necessary. War is an instrument for achieving a goal.

But unfortunately for Communism, this policy ran up against your atomic bomb in 1945. The American atomic bomb. Then the Communists changed their tactics. Then they suddenly became advocates of peace at any cost. They started to convoke peace congresses, to circulate petitions for peace, and the western world fell for this deceit. But the goal, the ideology, remained the same. To destroy your society. To destroy the way of life known in the West.

The persons who sign the treaties of detente with you now—these very men and no others—at the same time give orders for persons to be confined in mental hospitals and prisons. Why should they be different? Do they have any love for you? Why should they act honorably and nobly toward you while they crush their own people? The advocates of detente have never yet explained this.

The principal argument of the advocates of detente is well-known: all of this must be done to avoid a nuclear war. But after all that has happened in recent years, I think I can set their minds at ease: there will not be any nuclear war. What for? Why should there be a nuclear war if for the last 30 years the Communists have been breaking off as much of the West as they wanted—piece after piece, country after country and the process keeps going on? In 1975 alone four countries have already been broken off. Four—three in Indochina plus India, the process keeps going on and very rapidly too.

At one time there was no comparison between the strength of the USSR and yours. Then theirs became equal to yours. Now, as all recognize, it is becoming superior to yours. Perhaps today the ratio is just greater than equal, but soon it will be 2 to 1. Then 3 to 1. Finally it will be 5 to 1. With such a nuclear superiority it will be possible to block the use of your weapons, and on some unlucky morning they will declare: "Attention. We're marching our troops to Europe, and if you make a move, we will annihilate you." And this ratio of 3 to 1, or 5 to 1, will have its effect: you will not make a move.

We are slaves there in the Soviet Union from birth. We are born slaves. I'm not young anymore, and I myself was born a slave; this is even more true for those who are younger. We are slaves, but we are striving for freedom. You, however, were born free. If so, then why do you help our slave owners?

The whole existence of our slave owners in Russia from beginning to end relies on western economic assistance. Beginning with the first spare parts used to reconstruct our factories in the 1920s, the automobile and tractor factories built during the first five-year plans, on into the postwar years and to this day, what they need from you is economically absolutely indispensable—not politically, but economically indispensable—to the Soviet system.

The Soviet economy has an extremely low level of efficiency. What is done here by a few people, by a few machines, in our country takes tremendous crowds of workers and enormous masses of materials. Therefore the Soviet economy cannot deal with every problem at once: war, space (which is part of the war effort), heavy industry, light industry, and at the same time the necessity to feed and clothe its own population.

The forces of the entire Soviet economy are concentrated on war, where you are not helping them. But everything which is lacking, everything which is necessary to feed the people, or for other types of industry, they get from you. So indirectly you are helping them to arm to the teeth. You're helping the Soviet police state!

Come with us, reader, on a little voyage of imagination, and we promise that the end of the journey will reward your attention.

Picture yourself on a hilltop on the clearest, starriest night you ever knew. Can you see all those stars? Our encyclopedia tells us we can see 6,000 of them.

Now imagine that every one of those stars, even the dim ones we can barely see, is in itself a whole sky full of stars. In other words, try to imagine seeing 6,000 stars for every one.

That makes 36 million stars. Now, let's do it again, if we can, and try to imagine that every last one of those 36 million stars is itself a whole sky full of 6,000 stars. That makes 216 billion stars. And if every one of them were a dollar bill, that would be less than half of the federal debt.

Load of Chinese junk

It's a sad day in this country when a group of Senators and Congressmen and their wives can be turned into a bunch of shills for the Communist way of life.

But that's what happened when a group headed by Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) and Sen. Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.) committed the blunder of accepting an invitation to spend a summer vacation in China, courtesy of the Peking Reds.

The group was first carefully handpicked by the hosts, who promptly picked up the full tab.

Since then, these traveling free-loaders have been spouting off about the wonders and glories of Chinese society and the poverty of our own by comparison.

What they're selling is a lot of Chinese junk.

According to the Percys and Javits, China, despite a population of 800 million, has eliminated all corruption, dope and homosexuality.

The trains run on time, hotels are immaculate, visitors are given attentive loving care.

The food is the best in the world, they say, and the beer is terrific. China is self-sufficient.

China, they gush on, has no class distinctions, Mao is like George Washington, there is no competition and morale is high.

"They (the Chinese) have a saner reason for living than we do," said one of the blinkered group. "There is great contentment."

It is amazing that a group of supposedly hard-nosed Federal politicians and their families could be so easily wooed and suckered at so little cost.

We often squawk about politicians jetting off to exotic foreign lands at the expense of taxpayers.

But that system is preferable to foreign governments, Red or otherwise, carefully screening the whole Congress, choosing a few politicians with the right credentials, and then giving them a vacation on the house.

The Chinese are indeed a great people with a long and noble history.

But since the rise of the Reds, they have been subjected to bloody holocausts and even today its society is laced in an intellectual straitjacket.

Freedom of expression and worship are anathema. Freedom of movement is non-existent.

This is sane living? It's the very antithesis of what we cherish in the American Constitution.

Hammer and Richard Nixon

By JOHN F. McMANUS

BELMONT, Mass.—On Oct. 1, a man named Armand Hammer pleaded guilty in federal court to a charge of making illegal contributions to former President Richard Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign. Dr. Hammer, board chairman and president of the Occidental Petroleum Corporation, had concealed a gift of $54,000, in violation of a 1972 federal law that requires publication of the identity of large contributors to political campaigns. (Prior to the effective date of that law, he had already given the Nixon campaign the first $46,000 of a $100,000 pledge.) Obviously, Dr. Hammer had some powerful reason for keeping his support for Nixon quiet.

Most Americans know that Richard Nixon enjoyed a reputation as an anti-Communist. He achieved it through his highly publicized but actually minor role in the exposure of Alger Hiss in the late 1940s. On the strength of that single act and a great deal of rhetoric, Richard Nixon was catapulted into a prominence that carried him all the way to the White House.

Close watchers of the former President, however, have never been fooled by Nixon's anti-Communist image. The real Nixon was revealed to increasing numbers of Americans after he became President, as he blazed a trail to one Communist-Socialist goal after another. It was Nixon who brought legitimacy to Mao Tse-tung; who engineered fantastic increases in the size and reach of the federal government; who gloried in our shameful capitulation in Southeast Asia, and who delegated enormous power to Henry Kissinger and a host of other left-leaning appointees.

No, Richard Nixon was never a real anti-Communist. But for some who might require additional evidence to support our view, we suggest a look into the background of Nixon-contributor Armand Hammer. It is highly significant that this man would go to such lengths to help the man with the anti-Communist image. For Armand Hammer has been a lifelong pro-Communist.

Seventy-seven-year-old Armand Hammer is the son of Dr. Julius Hammer, a close friend of Soviet dictator Lenin and a founder of the American Communist Party. In 1921 the senior Hammer sent Armand to Russia, where he was warmly received by the Bolshevik leader. Young Armand had brought along large shipments of goods needed to sustain the revolution. In return, he was given a monopoly in pencil manufacturing, an operation that netted him over $1 million in profits the very first year. Lenin later inscribed a portrait of himself to "Comrade Armand Hammer," as evidence of his affection.

Hammer stayed on in the Soviet Union until 1931. During this period he amassed a fortune by gathering the priceless art treasures that had been stolen from the Russian aristocracy by the Communists. He then took his fortune out of Russia—he was one of very few able to do so—and made additional millions producing whiskey and raising livestock in the United States. In 1957, he acquired the Occidental Petroleum Corporation. In recent years, he has befriended Khrushchev and Brezhnev, while becoming the largest beneficiary of the tax-supported U.S. trade that keeps the Reds in business.

The point we wish to stress about all of this is that this notorious pro-Communist, a friend and agent of every Soviet dictator and beneficiary of Red tyranny, obviously wanted to keep Richard Nixon in the White House. This is the story that ought to be headlined, not the mere fact of Hammer's violation of a campaign contribution law. But don't waste time looking for this story elsewhere, because you won't find it. The Nixon policies that so appealed to Dr. Hammer are being continued by President Ford, and the American people have been told that such perfidy is progress.

"Your city is a blight on the entire neighborhood!"

It's 'auditphobia' season

"Auditphobia" is rampant in the land, reports "Query," a bulletin published by the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters.

The ailment is defined as an irrational fear of a federal income tax audit, and is usually triggered by a letter from the IRS asking you to come in for a chat with your friendly income tax collector. Symptoms include dry throat and excessive perspiration.

The only effective antidote for relieving the distress of "Auditphobia" is a complete set of records reflecting the accuracy of your return, especially cancelled checks and receipts supporting income tax deductions.

'Jolts' perfectly normal

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB—I have a puzzling condition that I have been unable to get an answer to. It is what I call "jolts." I will be lying prone—on my back—usually asleep or at rest, and a portion of my body will feel as if the muscle is jumping. This has occurred at my foot, at many points along each limb, at the heart, and, as I recall, even at the head. The jolts are so strong that they have shaken my entire frame as well as the bedstead. Other than the jolt, there is no effect or result, although I tend to seem to feel better afterwards—the same kind of good feeling that you get after a sneeze. I would appreciate your comments regarding this.

DEAR READER—This may give you another jolt, but those reactions are perfectly normal and even common. The sudden involuntary contraction of a muscle or set of muscles will do this.

In some ways they are like a limited momentary convulsion. Every voluntary muscle in your body is related to a specific set of cells in your brain. You can map out the area in the brain for the hand, foot, knee, elbow and all moving parts. When these cells are destroyed, as in a stroke, the part becomes paralyzed.

You can stimulate any of these cells and cause the appropriate muscle to move. In the laboratory we can do this in animals with an electrical probe to the cell. The neurosurgeon uses such information to tell where he is cutting in some instances. He can ask the patient to move a hand or a foot or give other responses or stimulate an area and observe the response.

When an electrical charge builds up in the cell it can discharge and stimulate the muscle to contract forcefully, causing the sensation of a jolt. This is really what happens in the more serious condition of a convulsion. A large enough electrical discharge occurs to cause muscles to contract, and with a series of discharges, in no organized fashion, the irregular contractions of the convulsion may occur.

The simple jolt reaction you have is not a convulsion, and it does not mean you have anything wrong with your brain. It is a normal discharge of a build up of conditions within a muscle itself that leads to contraction and then relaxation. In the process the factors leading to contraction are dissipated, and the muscle returns to a normal resting state.

Why do you feel better? People often feel more relaxed after dissipation of chemicals related to muscle contraction. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE F-630: Gordon D., aged 34, is Sunday School Superintendent of a fundamentalist church.

"Dr. Crane," he asked, "do you believe the Devil appears among us nowadays in human form?"

"The reason I ask, is because certain members of our church insist that Satan is alive today and stirring up juvenile delinquency, crime, and the other follies that beset our country. So what would be the psychological answer to this question?"

Satan On Earth
The current Pope at Rome has stated that Satan is really alive today, aided by millions of his henchmen.

"But," you may inquire, "is he merely using human beings as cat's paws to perform his wicked schemes?"

"Or does he incarnate himself, as Jesus did immediately following Christ's Resurrection?"

A similar query might apply to the Christian belief that Jesus is a vital dynamic force today down here on Earth.

"For wherever two or three are gathered together in my name," Christ promised, "there will I be in the midst of them."

Did Jesus mean that His Spirit would suffuse those two or three?

In Biblical times, the insane were regarded as being inhabited by evil spirits (devils).

Thus, when Christ met the mad man (Luke, Ch. 8) who was filled with devils, the latter begged Jesus not to cast them "out into the deep."

So Jesus obliged by sending them into a herd of swine.

Then the hogs ran down a steep place into the lake "and were choked."

On numerous other occasions Jesus told His Apostles they would also be able to cast out devils!

The implication of such remarks by Jesus is that evil spirits (devils) can inhabit human beings and drive them into doing the work of Satan.

Similarly, we assume that the beneficent Spirit of Christ can also come into human bodies and use them as the instrumentality of His Will.

If such be the case, then both Satan, as well as Jesus, can invest their psychological influence (Spirit) in other human beings, though neither Satan nor Jesus is here in carnate form.

On the cross, however, Christ was present on Earth in His own anatomical body.

Since His Resurrection, He returns to earth as the Holy Ghost when people call upon Him, and this suffuses them with special insight and power, to supplement their previous limited anatomical functions.

Faith healers believe they can pass the beneficent power of God into sick bodies and thereby have it restore such patients to health.

Chiropractors thus believe a healing effluvia flows from their fingers into the body of their patients.

In this connection it is interesting to note that almost all of Christ's healing miracles involved His laying His hands on the sick, placing His fingers in the ears of the deaf, making a paste and applying it to the eyes of the blind, etc.

In fact the latest innovation in modern medical education is to urge physicians today their hands on the patients, for both psychological and maybe spiritual healing value!

Older doctors soon begin to recognize that some spiritual force often seems to infuse dying patients and tip the scales in favor of life, so mull over these profound ideas!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Sexy Paris styles please men, too

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
PARIS (NEA)— Summer 1976 will be cheerful if fashion is any harbinger. Haute couture boutique collections and ready-to-wear manufacturers recently showed clothes here that men like to look at and girls like to wear.

Color runs the gamut of hot pinks, purples and mauves, to snowy white, ebony and khaki, the latter shading from tropical to the greenish paratrooper's uniform.

Fluidity keys every type of dress, suit or coat to follow the body line. But no stiffening in anything, anywhere, and, often, no lining.

Resort and beachwear, for sports, for around the pool or for patio dancing, were extensively featured. For the very young it's going to be a leggy summer with the return of shorts in every length—from hot pants to Bermudas, worn with T-shirt, perhaps a matching parka à la Saint Laurent or a sleeveless cardigan over a tucked in shirt. The jumpsuit, short-sleeved, is also in the picture.

There are long beach robes to wear over the stringiest of bikinis and one-piece swimsuits almost as revealing. All a woman has to aim for next summer is a flat tummy!

Incidentally, models doing the Paris off-the-peg shows haven't been wearing bras for years. This time they were practically nude under the flimsiest, transparent dresses. One designer coolly pointed out that briefs would just about have ruined the line.

It turns out that 1976 will go down in history as the sexiest, most uninhibited Paris ready-to-wear season—with bared backs, thighs, derrieres, et al.

Design influences—Turkish, Moroccan, Chinese, Hindu—are seen in long, slim cotton shifts and tunic dresses worn over skinny cotton pirate or pegtop pants.

Even a modest dress budget will enable the fashion conscious to acquire the 1976 look because the majority of the designers showed models made of two colors, say pink for a shirt-waist and mauve for a leggy slim skirt often slashed in front. Other combinations: red with khaki, yellow with orange, or orange with Chinese blue.

Yves Saint Laurent offered all the exciting ideas for the coming summer in his customary masterly manner. For understated chic it would be hard to beat his outfit of fine wool navy cardigan, belted, over a white silk crepe blouse with jabot front and slim jersey skirt with pleat front. His main theme is grandpapa's night-shirt, of varying lengths, and worn alone or over slick pants.

Pierre Balmain's blazers with single or double breasted fronts, glittering brass buttons over a white skirt or dress will appeal to the woman who appreciates understated elegance. His slender two-piece models along with slinky jersey dresses stressing the Y look which come in midcalf and an-kile-length are very feminine. There are also light-as-a-feather coats worn over silk suits. Balmain ended his showing with a group of 10 "Vie en Rose" evening dresses in various shades of pink.

Givenchy offers the widest range of khakis from the lightest to the darkest, zebra and bayadere stripes, along with soft white, black, vermillion, tender blues and peppy greens.

J. L. Scherrer, who dresses Madame Giscard d'Estaing, the president's wife, claims his collection is beamed at every generation, from 18 to 40, and older, thereby ignoring any generation gap. He shows loose sailor blouses over printed crepe skirts, slim shirt coats, unlined figured muslin evening dresses, with low square or shoestring décolletés and trailing scarves.

Marc Bohan at Dior started with a slender, supple, sportive silhouette for drawstring parkas of varying lengths for day and evening, double-breasted blazers, skirts and trousers which allow for an infinite number of combinations. There's a lot of humor, too, in his late-day line in dresses with dropped waists, drawstring necklines, gathered silk jersey trousers and sheaths slit up to the thigh.

Michel Goma opened with his relaxed sports numbers of culotte skirts or shorts worn with white schoolboy knee socks and sneakers. The feminine note appears in soft blouses.

Newcomer to the Paris scene was Valentino, one of the leading designers in Rome. He highlighted harem trousers for day, beach and evening, long, slinky Indian rajah's tunics teamed with skinny pants. He uses a lot of soft white Indian cotton, cotton gabardine and striped muslins.

Cotton, in fact, reigns almost supreme in the fabric story, in jersey, pique, Turkish toweling, sateen, plain, striped or printed voiles and gauzes. There also are silk crepes in monotonous or prints, the later demure and naive as compared to the bold designs of former years.

Mother discovers daughter sleeps in the 'raw'

Dear Ann Landers: I don't know if you can print this letter or not. I hope you can because I need to know if I'm old-fashioned, a little crazy or what.

We have a wonderful 18-year-old daughter. Belinda does well in school, goes with mannerly and refined girls and boys. Both my husband and I are very proud of her.

A few weeks ago I discovered that Belinda has been sleeping in the nude. At first I pretended not to notice, then last night I tactfully suggested that she wear a nightgown because the room gets rather chilly at night. She called me "old-fashioned" — said sleeping "in the raw" (A new expression to me) was more comfortable and that all her girlfriends did it.

Ann, I'm not trying to play the role of moralist for our daughter's generation, but when I was her age, sleeping naked was considered cheap. Only the crudest and most vulgar girls did it.

Have things changed that much? How do you see it? — Culturally Shocked

Dear Shocked: I see nothing wrong with Belinda sleeping nude if she wants to. True, it's not the way we did it in "our day" but then our grandmothers went swimming in long black stockings and the bathing suits had sleeves. Customs do change, you know, and maybe in 20 years nightgowns will be obsolete.

Dear Ann Landers: I'll bet that letter and your response in support of the small businessman went up on posters from coast to coast. The small independent merchant can't survive when his neighbors think of him only for donations, small favors and an after-hours bucket of paint. The price of gas, the problems of service, the benefit of having stores within walking distance — don't they count any more?

Unfortunately, there's another side to that coin. It's the small town businessman who's "made it," or is counting the days till retirement, regardless of whether he's 30 or 60.

He's the community leech, resting on his laurels or on the advantage of being "closest." He doesn't advertise, solicit business or give a damn. He refuses to support the Chamber of Commerce. He figures he'll get enough walk-in business when the Chamber promotes, or when the store down the street has a big sale.

These people are considered freeloaders. When they want their kid's baseball talents or their daughter's wedding in the local paper they can't understand why there wasn't space. — An Award-Winning Small-Town Newspaper About To Die

Dear Friend: Thanks for an inside look. Hang in there. I hope you make it.

Dear Ann: I have four young children who are surrounded by playmates in this suburban community. I don't want to be the neighborhood meanie, but all the mothers around here seem ultra-permissive. For instance: When I let my children go visiting I tell them to be home in an hour. When the hour is up, they are home. Their playmates, however, come over here and say they can stay for lunch, or supper, or as late as they wish. Yesterday a little girl showed up with her sleeping gear and announced that she could spend the night!

I want my kids to have friends, but too many "guests" disrupt the family unit. What shall I do? — Bellingham, Wash.

Dear Bell: Since the neighborhood mothers set no guidelines you must do the setting. No one will think you're an old meanie if you do it lovingly. (Copyright 1975, Field Enterprises, Inc.)

Right time to mislead enemy

By Oswald & James Jacoby
In the early stages of defense it pays to give your partner as much information as you can. Later on you may want to play to misinform declarer.

One bit of misinformation that you should always give him is that you play cards that he knows you hold rather than ones he can't be sure of.

South's five-diamond contract is rather optimistic. Probably North should have dropped the bidding at four; but South is in five.

West starts out with three rounds of hearts. South has to play dummy's jack of trumps on the third lead and is delighted when it holds. Now West is marked with the queen of diamonds.

South leads a diamond to his ace. If West meekly drops the 10, South will play his king and make his contract. But if West is worth his salt he will drop the queen under the ace. South won't know where the 10 is.

Maybe he will play his king and drop it, maybe he will go back to dummy, lead a second

Amoma Class

The Amoma class of the First Baptist Church held its November meeting in the home of Mrs. Louise Peacock.

During the business meeting, it was voted to send a monetary gift to the Central Baptist Children's Home, Lake Villa, to help purchase Christmas presents. Final plans were made for the annual Christmas dinner Dec. 2.

Devotions were given by Mrs. David Leer on "The Therapy of Thankfulness."

The program for the evening was a "Sing—spiration." Each member chose her favorite hymn and all members joined in singing while Mrs. Peacock played the organ.

Deborah Circle

Deborah Circle of the First United Methodist Church met in the home of Mrs. Warren Mynard, with Mrs. C. A. Mellott and Mrs. Dawson Womeldorf acting as co-hostesses.

A dessert luncheon was served to 15 members and one guest.

Devotions were given by Mrs. Katherine LeFevre on "The Therapy of Thankfulness," by Norman Vincent Peale.

The program for the afternoon was, "How Important are the Women's Societies of our Church," written and presented by Mrs. A. N. Boyd.

The next meeting will be Dec. 11 in the church parlor with Mrs. Raymond Schulte serving as hostess.

Preceptor Chapter

The Preceptor Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will meet Monday at 8 p.m., in Mrs. Samuel Berard's home, 318 Grant Ave.

Sarah Circle

Sarah Circle of the First United Methodist Church met recently for a dessert-luncheon and program. Mrs. Arthur Boyd prepared the program, "Daycare, Who Needs It?" which was presented by Mrs. James Mercer.

Devotions were given by Mrs. Fred Leeper.

Assisting with the dessert were Mrs. L. W. Feik, Mrs. Delbert Saunders and Mr. Harold Spencer.

The next meeting will be Dec. 11 in the home of Mrs. Jo VanMeter.

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures. The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

NOW is the time for all good men

By JOANNE KOCH

"Out of the mainstream—into the revolution!" That's the new and, at first glance, scary slogan of the National Organization of Women.

But the revolution which Karen DeCrow, recently re-elected president of NOW wants to see is not the overthrow of capitalism. She claims that socialism as practiced in the U.S.S.R. is just as sexist as capitalism. On her trip to the Soviet Union Women's Conference this fall, DeCrow encountered (along with a heavy dose of anti-Americanism and anti-semitism) a surprising degree of anti-feminism.

"In the Soviet Union anatomy is really destiny," reports DeCrow. "Parenting is exclusively women's work, work they must perform in addition to a full-time job." She found that Russian women do not hold as many managerial positions as men, that they are prohibited from certain full-time occupations with the excuse that they can't work throughout the month as men can. When she asked why men are never given time off for paternity or child care, Soviet officials replied that "women understand children's food." ("That's a myth," claims DeCrow. "anyone can understand children's food. It's peanut butter.")

What DeCrow wants to overthrow is sexism—a system which she claims doesn't treat men any better than it treats women. This year she will try to convince men to join NOW—"not because it's a wonderful thing for their wives and daughters, but because it's a wonderful thing for them."

Some of the questions she likely will pose to prospective male members are: Wouldn't you like to be relieved of the sole burden of financial support for your family? Wouldn't you like to share in the parenting of your children? Wouldn't you like to end the alimony system? Wouldn't you like to admit that you don't always know the answers?

Of course, a non-sexist system means a change in working conditions. When questioned about the practicality of this in a period of recession, DeCrow replies that this is the perfect time to share employment and experiment with part-time arrangements.

As for the children in the world without sexism which DeCrow envisions, "It couldn't be any worse than what is happening now." At the NOW convention, DeCrow notes proudly, the National Gay Task Force was responsible for child care. She calls "nonsense" the notion that gay people shouldn't be taking care of children. "I can't imagine why anyone thinks it's healthy for children to grow up in rigid sex roles."

Asked if there might not be a shred of biological or anthropological evidence which would support sex role divisions, DeCrow replied, "You're talking to a lawyer and I don't like shreds. There might be a shred, but in a society which gets to kids with heavy sex-role messages before they are out of nursery school, how can we know what that shred might be?"

Is there enough dissatisfaction among men and working class women to change the mainstream and bring about the unprecedented abolition of sexism?

Despite the lukewarm response to women's strike day and the failure of ERA to pass in New York and New Jersey, Karen DeCrow is hopping to increase and alter NOW's 60,000 predominantly female middle class membership so that its ranks begin to reflect the total population.

'Jack acted alone,' says Ruby's brother

By IRA BERKOW

"For at the heart of those doubts is the unwillingness or the inability of men calling themselves rational to accept the capricious malice of chance — the malignant fate that could place Lee Oswald in the one job that would give him a window from which to strike senselessly at a despised world, that could allow Jack Ruby an unplanned left turn into history, in which the one-time Chicago street kid (and now an unimposing little man, physically tough but soft and unsure and disturbed within himself), without known cause or visible connection, could convulse humanity." — Tom Wicker, in The New York Times, January 5, 1967, two days after the imprisoned Jack Ruby died of cancer in Dallas.

Nearly nine years later the questions concerning the assassination of President Kennedy and the murder of Oswald remain convulsive.

For one man in Detroit, the impact has been particularly great. He is Earl Ruby, Jack Ruby's brother (the youngest of nine children — Jack was sixth — of Polish-Jewish immigrants) and executor of his will.

"You still feel it in a lot of ways — what people consider the unanswered questions," said Earl Ruby recently. "Like not long ago my daughter comes home from college. She's concerned. She says, 'Daddy, friends at school have been saying that you and your brother Jack were involved with the government in a conspiracy.'"

"And I told her, 'You tell those people, honey, that your uncle was not in the CIA, not in the FBI, not involved in any way.'"

Earl Ruby, with glasses and graying sideburns, propped up his right leg on the desk in his office of the large cleaning and dyeing plant he owns. The 61-year-old Ruby grimaced, from the pain of an old football injury to his right knee.

"People have been asking for another commission to investigate the shootings," said Ruby. "And I'd welcome it. And what would they find? Nothing. Nothing that they haven't got. It would show once and for all that Jack did it on his own. There have been two investigative commissions — the Warren Commission and the more recent Rockefeller Commission. They found no evidence that Jack was acting within a conspiracy. And I would bet my life that they're right."

1963 by the Dallas Times-Herald and photographer Bob Jackson) MOMENT THAT SHOCKED an already dazed America: Lee Harvey Oswald doubles up as he is shot by Jack Ruby (right) in the basement of the Dallas city jail.

"I know my brother Jack. That's how he was. He did it on his own. He did many things on impulse."

The world knows full well the details of that morning of November 24, 1963, when, in the bowels of a Dallas police station, Jack Ruby slipped through police guard to shoot Oswald at point blank range — before an international television audience.

"One thing a lot of people may not realize today," said Earl Ruby, "was how much President Kennedy meant to people of our generation. He was our age. He was one of us. And we loved him. Look on my wall there. I had that picture of President Kennedy put there when I bought this plant, Cobo Cleaners, in 1961."

"And Jack was very patriotic. I remember him fighting years ago if someone insulted President Roosevelt, or President Eisenhower. And Jack was a damned good street fighter. You almost had to be to survive the ghetto where he grew up. Barney Ross, the great champ, was from the neighborhood and a friend of Jack's. He testified at the trial about Jack's patriotism. And Barney once told me that if Jack ever took the ring seriously, he could have been a champ, too."

"Jack also defended the Jews strongly. I remember once when Jack was on leave from the Air Force during World War II. We were at the bar of the Glass Hat in the Congress Hotel in Chicago. We overheard a man say, 'Oh, the war will be over when the Jews get through making all their money.'"

"Jack walked over to the guy, and said, 'What did you say?' The guy repeated it. And Jack knocked him cold."

"And when Jack found out what about the concentration camps he really was enraged. I remember him saying, 'There's got to be a way to kill Hitler.'"

Most agree that Ruby, a rough-and-tumble strip-tease club owner in Dallas, always strove for respectability. He believed that he was doing a service according to Ruby, for the nation and for the Jews by killing Oswald.

"It hurt him very much that most Jews, I believe, were embarrassed by his action, and by the rumors of conspiracy," said Earl Ruby. "That's why he insisted on taking lie detector tests — which proved him out — and making a death-bed recording of the fact that he acted alone, and had never known Oswald."

"But most people, I think, sympathized greatly with him. We got thousands and thousands of letters and telegrams congratulating him. And once, when I went for an interview to be part of the Big Brother program, I met with a priest. He said, 'I know who you are. You're Jack Ruby's brother. Well, I want you to know something. Never be ashamed of what your brother did. If given the chance, a lot of people — including me — would have done the same thing.'"

"Another thing that worried Jack was the hardship that he might be bringing on the family. I told him that I didn't think there was much."

"Oh, it cost us some money to fly up and back, and it took time. And, well, when it happened, the kids at my daughter's grade school called her, 'Killer Ruby,' but the principal called an assembly and put a stop to that."

"And it didn't hurt my business, nor my standing in the community. My business, after the first hard years, began to rise just before the assassination and continued to improve after."

Today in History

By The Associated Press Today is Saturday, Nov. 22, the 326th day of 1975. There are 39 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1963, President John Kennedy was assassinated as he rode in a motorcade in Dallas, Tex.

On this date: In 1643, the French explorer, Robert de la Salle, was born. In 1890, the late Charles de Gaulle was born in Lille, France.

In 1892, the Belgians suppressed an uprising by Arab slaveholders in the upper Congo.

In 1906, the S-O-S signal for ships in distress was adopted by an international convention in Berlin.

In 1941, in World War II, German forces captured the Soviet city of Rostov.

In 1943, a wartime conference was held in Cairo by President Franklin Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

Ten years ago: Former Vice President Richard Nixon charged that President Lyndon Johnson had failed to take steps to win the war in Vietnam.

Five years ago: American jet bombers were carrying out massive raids in North Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

One year ago: The U.N. General Assembly gave the Palestine Liberation Organization observer status in United Nations affairs.

Today's birthdays: Actor Robert Vaughn is 43. Heiress Doris Duke is 63.

Thought for today: O, wind, if winter comes, can spring be far behind — Percy Shelley, English poet, 1792-1822.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, Gen. George Washington ordered every company in his army to send an officer into the countryside to enlist soldiers.

Gov. Walker

governor didn't fare quite as well.

The Senate completed override action Friday on a pair of bills to establish a medical disciplinary board to act on complaints against doctors.

The board, consisting of five medical doctors, an osteopath, and a chiropractor, would be independent of the Department of Registration and Education, which currently handles medical disciplinary matters.

In his veto message, Walker argued that such a board was "unprecedented" and said it would be "totally controlled by the profession if it is intended to regulate."

Earlier in the week, the General Assembly overrode Walker's veto of a bill to place control of the annual state fair with a 15-member board composed largely of persons elected by agricultural groups in districts throughout the state.

The governor has already said he will ask the attorney general to file a suit testing the constitutionality of the law.

A lawsuit has also been filed in U.S. District Court in Chicago testing the constitutionality of a new abortion law which would, among other things, require a married woman to receive her husband's consent before having an abortion.

However, Walker's vetoes were sustained on several other measures, including bills to: —Designate certain areas in public facilities where smoking would be permitted.

—Lower the qualifying age for the homestead exemption program of senior citizen property tax relief from 65 to 64.

—Create a separate board of trustees for the Edwardsville campus of Southern Illinois University.

—Remove the responsibility for administering federal crime-fighting grants from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission and give it to a Criminal and Juvenile Justice Commission.

—Change the date of the Illinois primary election from the third Tuesday in March to the first Tuesday in May.

Walker made changes in a bill to permit playing card games for money at home and at union, fraternal and veterans' halls. However, the legislature refused to accept the bill in the amended form.

Lost in the same manner was a measure which would have increased the state's adult hourly minimum wage from $1.90 to $2.20 on Jan. 1. Even without the bill, however, the minimum wage will jump from $1.90 to $2.10.

The General Assembly is scheduled to return Jan. 14 to hear the governor's "State of the State" message.

School aid falls short for Ashton

ASHTON — According to the report of the Superintendent of the Ashton schools, Richard L. McCannon, in 1971-72 the Ashton schools received $114,700 in general state aid. But he now reports that in 1972-73 the state aid was increased to $148,000. The state changed the formula for state aid and introduced the Resource Equalizer method but made provisions for schools like Ashton to continue under the old formula if that would bring in more state aid under the old formula. Ashton received $121,200 in 1973-74 and $131,500 in 1974-75.

After four years of inflation, the Ashton schools will receive less state aid this year, with about $114,500, than they received in 1971-72. Lower average attendance and the revised formula add up to less state aid for Ashton schools.

Superintendent McCannon says that this means, that local taxes will have to make up for the reduced state aid if the Ashton schools continue the present educational program.

Major action by General Assembly

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Here is a summary of major actions taken by the Illinois General Assembly in its fall session.

The session ended Friday. EDUCATION—Gov. Daniel Walker's cuts of $142 million in appropriations for school aid were upheld. The House had voted to override part of the reduction, including $81 million in direct payments to school districts and $35.7 million in grants for special education programs. But the Senate voted to sustain the cuts.

ABORTION—The General Assembly overrode a Walker veto and enacted a law that would require a married woman to obtain her husband's permission before having an abortion.

ROADS—Local governments will get an extra $17 million for their own road programs because of a General Assembly override. The money otherwise would have been used for the state's road program.

STATE FAIR—Sponsors say a 15-member board will be named by the end of the year to control the State Fair Agency. The legislature overrode Walker's veto of the bill stripping him of authority for the fair and giving it to the independent board.

CARD GAMES—Card games played for money still are illegal in Illinois. Legislation to permit such gambling was amended by the governor, but the General Assembly refused to accept the bill in its altered form.

PRIMARY DATE—The 1976 primary election will be March 16. No vote was taken in the General Assembly on Walker's veto of legislation which would have put the primary in May.

SIU—The Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees continues its control of the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses. The Senate overrode a veto of a bill to create a separate board for the Edwardsville campus, but the House failed to follow suit.

MEDICAL DISCIPLINE—A board of seven doctors will be set up to discipline physicians. Walker vetoed legislation sponsored by the Illinois State Medical Society to create the board, but the General Assembly overrode the veto.

RACING—The General Assembly accepted the governor's recommendations for changes in a new horse racing law. The legislation, which the governor says he will certify, permits winter racing and racing on Sundays in those communities which approve it, while retaining a prohibition in the old law against political contributions from racing interests.

GOVERNMENT—The Illinois Law Enforcement Commission continues as the state's distributor of federal crime prevention grants. An effort to replace the commission cleared the Senate, but failed in the House.

Red Cross presents 72 volunteer awards

When the Lee County Red Cross held its annual board meeting dinner at KSB Hospital recently, 72 awards were presented by board member John Tatum to outstanding volunteers of the organization. These included service pins to two Paw Paw residents: Mrs. Vernon Merriman, a present board member, who received a 25-year pin for her volunteer work in a variety of Red Cross activities, and Roger Moorehead, who was presented a 15-year pin for his dedicated service as a volunteer first aid instructor.

Certificates of Appreciation were given to 28 nurses who have assisted at bloodmobile visits and certificates were also presented to representatives of the following organizations: Dixon Elks Lodge No. 779, Dixon Elks Ladies Auxiliary, American Legion Post No. 1253 of Lee, Illinois; Sublette Home Extension Unit, Dixon Marine Corps League Auxiliary, St. Paul's Lutheran Church Women, Amboy Lions Club, Amboy Evening Woman's Club, Lee County Farm Bureau Farm Women, Dixon VFW Post No. 540, Dixon VFW Auxiliaries, Wyoming Home Extension Unit of Paw Paw, St. Flannan's Catholic Church and the United Methodist Church, both in Harmon; St. Mary's Catholic Church of Walton, Illinois Dept. of Transportation, Ashton United Methodist Women, KSB Hospital, Foursquare Church of Dixon, Borg-Warner Corp., St. Patrick's Altar and Rosary Society, United Methodist Women of both First and Grace United Methodist Churches in Dixon, area radio stations, Chicago Road Shopper, E. Edelman Co., Dixon High School Cooperative Work-Training class, Dixon National Bank, and the Dixon Evening Telegraph. Also honored were 15 volunteers who have served 18 hours or more at bloodmobile visits as typists, canteen workers, blood labelers, and donor escorts.

Officers elected during the business meeting included Edward Lawton, chairman; the Rev. Mary Ewbank, vice chairman; Patterson Curtis, treasurer; Mrs. Kenneth Gross, secretary to the board; and Mrs. Vernon W. Stein, executive director. Judge James Bales, Mrs. Donald Book, Mrs. Carl Schnake, Mrs. Harry Lepthien, and the Rev. Merle Hall were each elected to serve three-year terms as new board members.

Chairman Lawton spoke of the progress of the bloodmobile equipment committees, who are working to interest other civic-minded organizations and individuals in contributing needed items for Lee County's own three-bed bloodmobile and van. It was mentioned that the benefits of the Red Cross blood program would remain the same as in the past and each donated pint of blood would continue to be thoroughly tested by the Regional Red Cross Blood Center in Peoria.

Mrs. Rose Johnson, Red Cross field representative, Chicago, spoke briefly praising the officers and volunteers of the Lee County Red Cross for their successful efforts toward chapter growth.

Injured in car crash

Carol A. Sherman, 29, Walnut, was hospitalized for injuries she sustained from a car accident Friday morning.

Sherman was northbound on Pump Factory Road. As she approached the overpass with the tollway, she failed to negotiate a curve and veered off the road, according to reports.

Sherman was treated and released from KSB Hospital. Lee County Sheriff's deputies ticked her for failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Accused in disturbance

OREGON — Ogle County Sheriff's deputies arrested Buford B. Hicks, 31, Rockford early this morning and charged him with disorderly conduct.

The arrest stemmed from a disturbance at Bud and Lum's Tavern in Kings. Deputies were called to the scene after Hicks had been removed from the tavern by the owners for unruly conduct.

He was taken to Ogle County Jail.

Man accused in property damage

Leonardo M. Martinez, 45, Chateau Estates, was arrested by Dixon Police early this morning for charges in Sterling.

Martinez is accused of criminally damaging property of Louis Martinez in Sterling. He was transferred to Whiteside County officials.

Nov. 21— Russell M. Lamb and Ruth J. Decker, both of Oregon.

Arrested on E-W Tollway

State police arrested a Hoffman Estates man on the Illinois Tollway for traffic charges Friday night.

Charged was Larry Patel, 26. He was accused of driving at 73 miles per hour on the tollway and driving while his license had been revoked.

Patel is to appear in Lee County Circuit Court Dec. 9.

Voting underway

ROCHELLE — Voting is under way today for a proposed $950,000 school bond referendum for 16 additional classrooms to alleviate crowded conditions and anticipated future enrollment for Rochelle Township High School District.

Polls are open until 7 p.m. today at Central School, Rochelle, and the grade schools at Steward, Creston, Esmond, Lindenwood and Kings.

Liquor charge

OREGON — David G. Trenholm, 22, Oregon, was arrested by Ogle County Sheriff's deputies Friday and charged with illegal transportation of liquor.

Deputies apprehended Trenholm as he was operating his car on Rocky Hollow Road, northeast of Chana.

He was released from Ogle County jail on $50 bond.

Domestic fight ends in arrest

A domestic quarrel in Amboy led to the arrest of Arthur Jacobs, 49, on a charge of battery.

Jacobs was accused by his wife, Gladys, of striking her on the head at their residence at 331 E. Main St., in Amboy.

He was taken to the Lee County Law Enforcement Center and released on bond. A court appearance on Dec. 17 was scheduled.

Sues over car crash

Combined damages of $11,000 are being sought in a two-count suit filed in Lee County Circuit Court Friday afternoon. Filed on behalf of Timothy Stauffer and Jackie Andrews, the suit names, as defendant, Clarence Swinton.

Swinton is charged with negligent driving in connection with an auto accident Sept. 15 in which Stauffer and Andrews were injured permanently, the suit alleges.

Swinton is accused, in the suit, of failing to yield to the Stauffer auto at the intersection of Second St. and Crawford Ave. Stauffer, the driver of the car, seeks $5,000 in personal-injury damages and $1,000 for damages to his car; Andrews, a passenger in the Stauffer car, seeks collection of $5,000 in personal-injury damages.

Police probe theft of telephones

Central Telephone Co., reported to Dixon Police vandalism to several phone installations in the area.

Phone systems have been removed from locations at Dawson's Coin Wash, a booth at First Street and Hennepin Avenue, Moore's Mobile Home Park, and a booth next to the Centel office building on West Second Street.

Denny Moore of Moore's Mobile Home Park also reported that $15 in change had been taken from a cigarette machine in his office.

The incidents are under investigation by Dixon Police and sheriff's deputies.

Charged in disturbance

Roger Cover, 22, 2116 W. Ninth St., was arrested by Dixon Police officers following a disturbance at Lee's Lounge early this morning.

Cover was charged with disorderly conduct. Police were called to the scene by Jeri Haenitsch, manager at the Dixon House.

Cover was released from jail to appear in court Dec. 11.

Gets jail time on DWI charge

An Oregon man was sentenced Friday to 180 days imprisonment in the State Penal Farm, Vandalia, after he pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated. Gerald Wright, 37, was sentenced by Associate Judge Martin D. Hill.

As part of the negotiated plea, other charges of illegal transportation of liquor, improper lane usage, and two counts of driving with a revoked license, were dismissed.

Wright was arrested Sept. 5 by Paw Paw Police.

Ticketed after car collision

Irl John Flanagan, 24, 817 S. Hennepin Ave., was ticketed by Dixon Police for failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident Friday afternoon.

The charge stemmed from a collision in the 100 block of North Galena Avenue. Jack A. Ottoson, 24, Franklin Grove, was southbound in the outside lane. As he stopped for traffic, his car was struck in the rear by Flanagan's car, police said.

Morris family tours Soviet in 'blue beast'

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP)— Can a family of six leave jobs and school behind, toss six duffelbags and a couple of pup tents into a van and casually take off for a year of togetherness, traveling throughout Europe and the Soviet Union?

The Morris family did and not only lived to tell the tale, but Jeannie Morris, writer and Chicago television sports reporter, has told it—in her new book, "Adventures in the Blue Beast."

The "Beast" is the camper that served as home base for Jeannie, her husband, TV sportscaster and former Chicago All-Pro football player Johnny Morris, and their four children.

"It was my idea to do it," declared the petite and vivacious author in an interview here. "In 1969 when I started writing a sports column I put every bit I earned into 'The Freedom Fund' and eventually it got to be an impressive figure."

Though "one thing and another" brought that figure to $30,000, none of it came from Jeannie's earlier book, "Brian Piccolo: A Short Season," profits from which were donated to the football player's widow and to cancer research.

Their new blue vehicle in the hold of the ship, the Morris began their adventure aboard the Queen Elizabeth II in August 1973.

BEAST AND BURDEN— "The Blue Beast," as it is affectionately known, was home base for the Morris family during the year they traveled in Europe and the Soviet Union. A top the van is Holly and, from left to right, Tim, parents Jeannie and Johnny, Dan and Debbie.

"There was no resistance from the school board, which thought the trip would be educational for the children," their mother recalls. Dan and Debbie, then 16 and 14, dropped out of high school for a year and their father tutored the younger children, Tim and Holly, then 10 and 7.

"They're all four getting better grades than before and all would take the trip again. Johnny and I would do it again anytime," adds the personable author, who gloatingly announces that she is 39, while her husband, a few months older, is 40. "We're almost always the same age, but right now I get to be a year younger," she says, clapping her hands in glee.

"Language was no problem on the trip. Johnny cannot speak any language in the world but he is an accomplished sign linguist. We didn't go by guidebooks, we went by our nose," explains Jeannie, wearing brown slacks and sweater and curled up shoeless on the bed of her hotel room.

"There was always a lot of input about where we should go, but Johnny did the driving and we never knew what the decision was till he made a left or right. You might have disagreements, but it really doesn't matter what you do, whether you go to Brussels or Amsterdam tomorrow—because you have time."

It was an unplanned 12 months, except for one deadline. They had to be at the Russian border at noon on October 1, as prearranged by Intourist. Altogether, they drove 22,000 miles.

"We would never drive any farther than was comfortable. If you're going to do it, and I think everyone who can should, do half the things you originally planned, but do them well," Jeannie advises, pointing out that they stayed six weeks in a little village on the south coast of Crete. "We skipped some places, but when we were there we lived with people, ate what they ate."

"There is a certain luxury in primitive society. There's no freezer and no canned goods, so you don't have the variety but it makes for innovative cuisine. And with all that fresh food I finally persuaded Johnny I could turn our lawn into a garden and all this past summer we've had fresh vegetables."

They tried as they went along to obtain literature to background the youngsters in history and current politics of the countries they visited. At Stratford-upon-Avon they "got immersed" in Shakespeare.

"There were valuable experiences. When Johnny had an infected foot Dan did the foraging, shopping and dealing," Jeannie relates. "They're all tremendously tolerant now and they'll probably all seek out new people and ideas and have no hangups about new situations because they conquered all the fear that year. They took a big gulp out of life all at once, which puts them a step ahead in terms of maturity."

Always a close family, the six encountered no problems in being thrown so much together. "What makes tension in families is pressures brought from school, from work, from the tedium of housework," Jeannie explains. "On a trip you take all those outside pressures off."

They took along three or four changes of clothing, which they "wore to rags," and camped out about two thirds of the time. Their only purchases were some copperware and a piece of Delft, both for gifts. For themselves they brought back "zilch. Nothing except our rags," Jeannie admits with a laugh.

"Adventures in the Blue Beast" is published by Rand McNally.

Ringo is Starr in ABC future

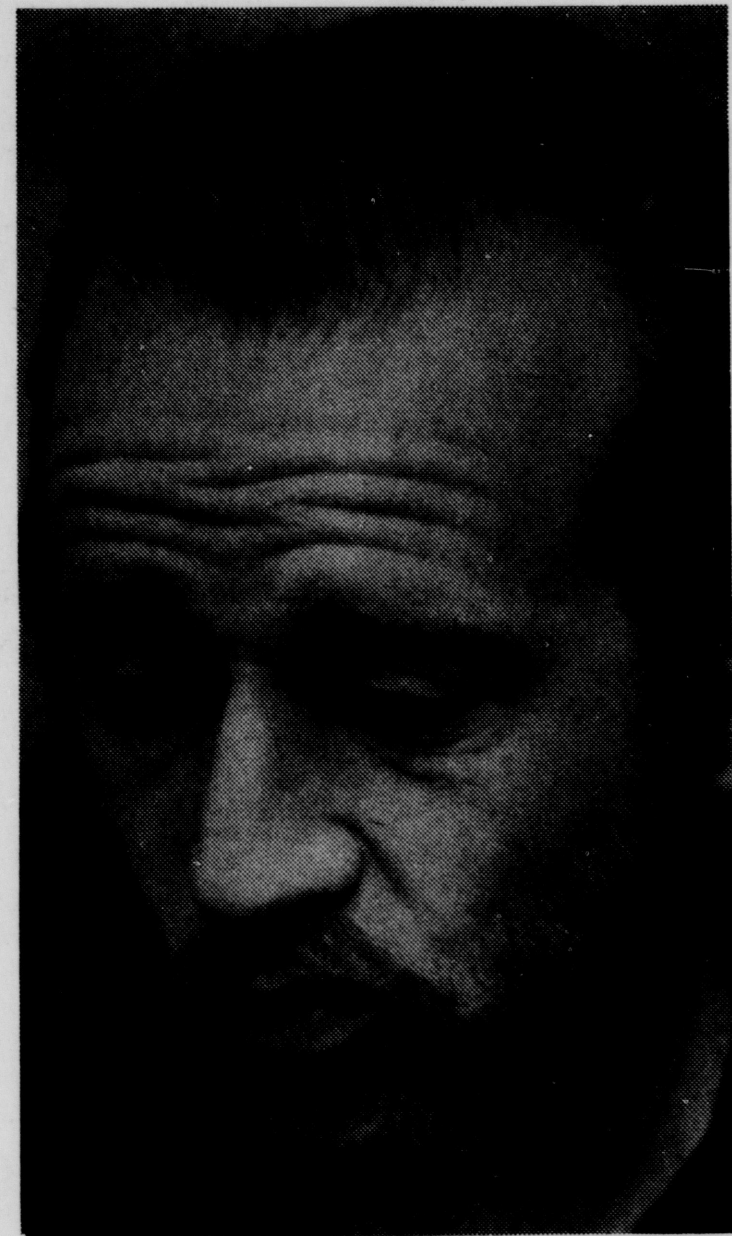

By STEPHEN FORD
NEW YORK (NEA)— Capitol Records just won't seem the same without the Beatles, even if they haven't recorded an album together in more than five years. But Ringo Starr is reportedly pondering a $5.5 million contract with ABC Records—supposedly hinging on whether super-producer Richard Perry comes for the ride.

Earlier this year, Paul McCartney was considering a move from Capitol to another label but finally renewed after Capitol waved a multi-million dollar contract at him.

Sick of media hype and excessive publicity for rock's aristocrats? Pity the poor souls of Des Moines, Iowa, where, as part of a promotion campaign, a radio station played a single by the Bay City Rollers 60 consecutive times.

Guess who isn't coming to dinner? Or anywhere else, for that matter. You guessed it! Guess Who! The Canadian rock band appears to have broken up after bassist Bill Wallace decided his priorities were at home and retired.

TV's prolific scorewriter, Quincy Jones, contributes to the nation's Bicentennial madness by producing a history of black music dating as far back as 1510—just a bit before Motown started . . .

GEORGE CARLIN: "I consider TV nothing but an extension of the advertising world so I use it to promote myself."

What this country really needs right now is The Monkees. Salvation is at hand. Mickey Dolenz and Davy Jones of the defunct band that blazed new trails in bubblegum, have joined forces with another late '60s creation, Boyce & Hart, and will record for Capitol.

Dimensionless: Two of the four members of The Fifth Dimension have split from the group but will continue as a duet.

A not-so-funny thing happened to George Carlin on his way to becoming a very successful comedian: he may have lost his sense of humor.

Like the late Lenny Bruce whom he obviously emulates, Carlin appears in the spotlight as the funny, sensitive and searing social observer. But offstage, the two gadflies revealed a different side—that of cryptic cynic a bit jaded by making all this money for utes in order to elicit their rejection. "It takes as much effort to earn total group rejection as it does praise," he explains in Dadaist logic.

"Well," he pauses, "You're in front of these people trying to amuse them, maybe make a point and they're out there complaining about their steak, dropping silverware, closing deals over flaming meatballs; everything but listening to you."

"Television's almost as bad. People watching you while they're eating, arguing, making love. But you have to know how to use television to your advantage. I do. I do because I consider it nothing but an extension of the advertising world so I use it to promote myself and meet interesting people."

"When I watched TV as a kid, I never dreamed the advertisers would take over this magic box."

Carlin adjusts the glasses he never wears in public and scratches at his beard. "Unless television is subsidized by the government and made to program something worthwhile, then what happens to the tube is just what we deserve."

Though Carlin's argument makes a fair amount of sense, he bridges when it's suggested that government control of programming could conceivably lead to censorship.

Apparently wired beyond sensibility, or above all this, Carlin's psyche somersaults as he then responds to everything antagonistically.

"These questions are standard," he mutters before the question is finished and launches into a prepared rebuttal that is not remotely germane to the question. What a tremendous waste of talent. Just like Lenny.

ISHA grid championships decided by lopsided scores

NORMAL, Ill. (AP) — "It could have been a lot of things. Why does anybody fumble? It just happens," said Jerry Auchstetter, football coach of the Geneva Vikings, after his team fumbled away the ball five times in losing the Class 3A Illinois high school football championship 25-7 to Metamora.

"We have been able to win because we have been able to take advantage of other people's fumbles," said Auchstetter. "But that happened to us tonight. They took advantage of our fumbles and other miscues."

In fact, Metamora also fumbled away the football five times. But Metamora turned three of the fumbles it recovered into touchdowns and that was the difference in the game. "I think the ball was a little wet. The (playing) surface was wet and it kind of coated it," said Metamora coach John Helmick. "And I think there was some good hitting going on, Geneva hit hard and we hit hard, too."

Two of Geneva's fumbles were turned into touchdowns by Larry Sommer, a 205-pound senior who rambled for 159 yards, but also had trouble holding onto the ball.

"The first few times my fingertips were really cold and I just couldn't hold on," he said. "The ball was wet, too, from then on it was wet."

The Vikings never did find a way to stop Sommer, who repeatedly lowered his head and bowled his way through linemen, the cold and intermittent snow flurries for yardage.

"He's super...He has the size and the strength and the quickness. But more than anything else, he came to play, he's going to give it everything he's got," said Helmick.

The first two games of the Illinois high school tournament also were dominated by the awesome performances of running backs: Jay Wessler of Concord Triopia and Jerry Jones of Decatur St. Teresa.

Wessler broke tournament records for total touchdowns, total points and yards rushed. He ran for 216 yards and scored four touchdowns and 30 points, leading Triopia to a 36-6 win over Princeville and the Class 1A title.

Hours later, Jones broke

Wessler's records for total touchdowns and yards rushed as he scrambled for 250 yards and scored five touchdowns. It was more than the powerful Decatur team needed to whip Stockton 35-0 and take the Class 2A championship.

"I felt I had to prove myself," said Wessler, whose fumble last year contributed to Triopia's startling upset by underdog Flanagan.

But, he said, "I didn't expect anything like this."

In last year's title game, Flanagan recovered a Wessler fumble and went on to score its first touchdown in a 13-8 win.

This year, the 175-pound junior made up for it, and coach Don Kemp already is looking ahead to next season.

"He reads (the situation) real good, and for a boy he's a pretty powerful runner," said Kemp. "He'll run right at you, he doesn't have to run around you."

In contrast, Jones says his secrets are quickness and speed. But both runners credit strong forward lines with making Friday's performances possible.

Post-season bowl pairings to be decided today

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Notre Dame will be in the Orange Bowl tonight, but it won't be the real thing.

The harassed Fighting Irish, missing from The Associated Press' Top Twenty for the first time in 12 years as a result of last week's 34-20 loss to Pitt, wind up a disappointing season—7-3 going in—against the University of Miami, which claims the Orange Bowl as its home field.

Notre Dame's postseason bowl hopes—the Cotton Bowl was ready and willing but the Irish weren't able—vanished against Pitt, and Miami, despite a 2-6 record, could add to the frustration of Dan Devine's first year as Notre Dame's head coach.

"Miami is an excellent team and a very tough one," Devine says. "They've played nose-to-nose with some of the best teams in the country. We're going into another rattlesnake's nest."

Elsewhere, many of the remaining bowl berths were to be decided on the next-to-last weekend of the regular season. The schedule included three match-ups of Top Twenty teams.

At Ann Arbor, Mich., No. 1-ranked Ohio State and fourth-ranked Michigan slugged it out for the Big Ten Conference championship, with the winner earning a trip to the Rose Bowl and the loser going to the Orange Bowl against the survivor of the Big Eight showdown at Norman, Okla., between second-ranked Nebraska and No. 7 Oklahoma. If Ohio State and Michigan played a tie, Michigan would go to the Rose Bowl, and Ohio State, which has been to the last three Rose Bowls, would go to the Orange Bowl.

Two bowl teams clashed in Pittsburgh, where 10th-ranked Penn State, headed for the Sugar Bowl against Alabama, met No. 17 and Sun Bowl-bound Pitt. Pitt's opponent would be the winner of the game between No. 18 Missouri and Kansas at Lawrence, Kan.

Meanwhile, ninth-ranked Colorado entertained Kansas State, Utah visited No. 11 Arizona for a night contest, Stanford hosted No. 13 California with the winner remaining in contention with UCLA for the Rose Bowl, Cincinnati was at No. 16 Miami of Ohio, Virginia at No. 19 Maryland and Texas Tech at No. 20 Arkansas.

Arizona had to win to set up a showdown against Arizona State next Saturday for the Western Athletic Conference crown and the host spot in the Fiesta Bowl. Maryland tried to nail down the Atlantic Coast Conference title by beating Virginia, while Arkansas needed a victory over Texas Tech to remain in contention for the Southwest Conference championship along with Texas A&M and Texas.

Seven members of the Top Twenty were idle—third-ranked Texas A&M, Alabama, No. 6 Texas, eighth-ranked Arizona State, No. 12 Florida, No. 14 UCLA and No. 15 Georgia.

In the Ivy League, Harvard and Yale had their annual shootout at New Haven, Conn. The ancient rivals were tied for first place.

A national television double-header via ABC-TV has Ohio State-Michigan followed by Penn State-Pitt.

Amboy edges Oregon 49-47

By CONNI DETTMAN
Telegraph Sports Writer

AMBOY—All eyes fell on the ball in the capacity-filled gym as Amboy took over possession of it, with 10 seconds hanging on the clock. Clipper Greg Esgar, playing with a shoulder injury, looked toward the basket from an outside post for the shot. An Oregon Hawk loomed above Esgar and forced him to pass the ball to Steve Powers at a low inside-the-lane position. Powers faked two Hawks double-teaming him and pushed the ball toward the basket over the two defenders as the seconds ticked down.

The ball went up hit the rim and bounced up. It seemed like forever and a day before the ball went through the hoop to put the Clippers into the lead for the first time since the opening quarter.

One second remained on the clock, but it was not enough to allow the Hawks to tie the game as the home Amboy team landed a victory in the opening game of the 1975-76 season, Friday night, in a 49-47 decision.

Powers and Esgar made the difference in the final minutes of play. Esgar scored two unanswered baskets with less than one minute on the clock to tie the game at 47-47. The Clippers regained control of the ball, tying the score after a bad Hawk pass.

Only 10 seconds remained on the clock, Esgar saw he couldn't get a shot at the basket and passed to Powers, who, in turn, made the winning shot for Amboy.

The fourth quarter was the big difference in the game. Amboy outscored Oregon 23-13 after going to a more pressurized man-to-man defense. The Clippers entered the final quarter trailing the Hawks 34-26. Oregon was continually hitting on the long outside shots and gaining points on quick break-aways.

The Hawks forced Amboy to make mistakes with a pressure defense. The pace of the game began to pick up and a series of turnovers by each team failed to allow the Clippers to gain ground on Oregon.

A series of fouls in the closing minutes of the quarter could have hurt Amboy if the Hawks would have been able to capitalize on the extra point attempts. Oregon missed six consecutive free-throw attempts in under four minutes of the game. With Esgar's hot outside shooting and two key free throws by Powers, the Clippers managed to come from behind for the victory.

Mistakes were all that hurt Amboy in the first three quarters, but it was mistakes which helped the Clippers beat Oregon.

Amboy jumped into the early lead when Powers scored two quick buckets from a long outside position. Leading 4-0, it looked like the home team had the game under control, but that's when the turnovers began to pop up. An Oregon break-away layup, followed by a bucket and two consecutive steals resulting in baskets, put the Hawks in front of the Clippers, 8-6. Amboy came back to tie the score at 10-10, but Oregon poured the steam on again to take a 16-12 advantage at the end of the first quarter.

Although the two clubs played even through most of the second quarter, the Clippers couldn't seem to put it together to gain ground on the Hawks. Turnovers kept the scoring low and prevented the teams from gaining on each other. Each team was guilty of several three-second violations. Bad passes by each team resulted in quick breaks, but neither one managed to capitalize.

The Clippers did gain some ground on the Hawks part way through the quarter but couldn't hold it for long. After several Oregon fouls and an intercepted pass, Amboy pulled within one point on a basket by Randy Blackburn. Two minutes remained in the period, with only the one point separating the two teams. Amboy's shooting went cold and Oregon shot back with two unanswered baskets to take a 26-21 lead at the half.

The Hawks played a zone defense through most of the first half, occasionally dropping to the man-to-man when it looked like Amboy was beginning to pick up some momentum. The zone defense did the job on the Clippers, forcing them to take long outside shots to get their score. It was not until late in the game when Amboy began to penetrate and pick up points from the close-range shots.

The Clippers throughout the first half played a man-to-man defense, trying to keep Oregon away from the basket. Hawk Dave Bocker gave Amboy the most trouble in the first two stanzas, scoring five buckets for 10 points in 16 minutes of play. Bocker had the hottest hand for the Oregon team in the first half and scored baskets from all points on the court.

The Clippers were out to get the Hawks when they came back on the floor in the third quarter. After a shaky start, Amboy initiated a more pressurized defense against Oregon.

Coupled with another series of turnovers by each team, and the tougher defense, neither team managed to score many points in the quarter. The Clippers lost more ground to the Hawks and it was beginning to look like Oregon would land a victory in the first game of the season.

Both defenses did begin to come alive in the third quarter. Scrambles for the ball resulted for the more aggressive teams, but fouls kept either one from scoring on the break-away shots. By the end of the third quarter, Amboy trailed Oregon, 34-26.

Then came the fourth quarter. Joe Bothe and Blackburn fouled out for the home team, while Jeff Cordes fouled out for the visitors. The big difference, and partial aid to the Clipper victory, were the missed free throw shots by the Hawks.

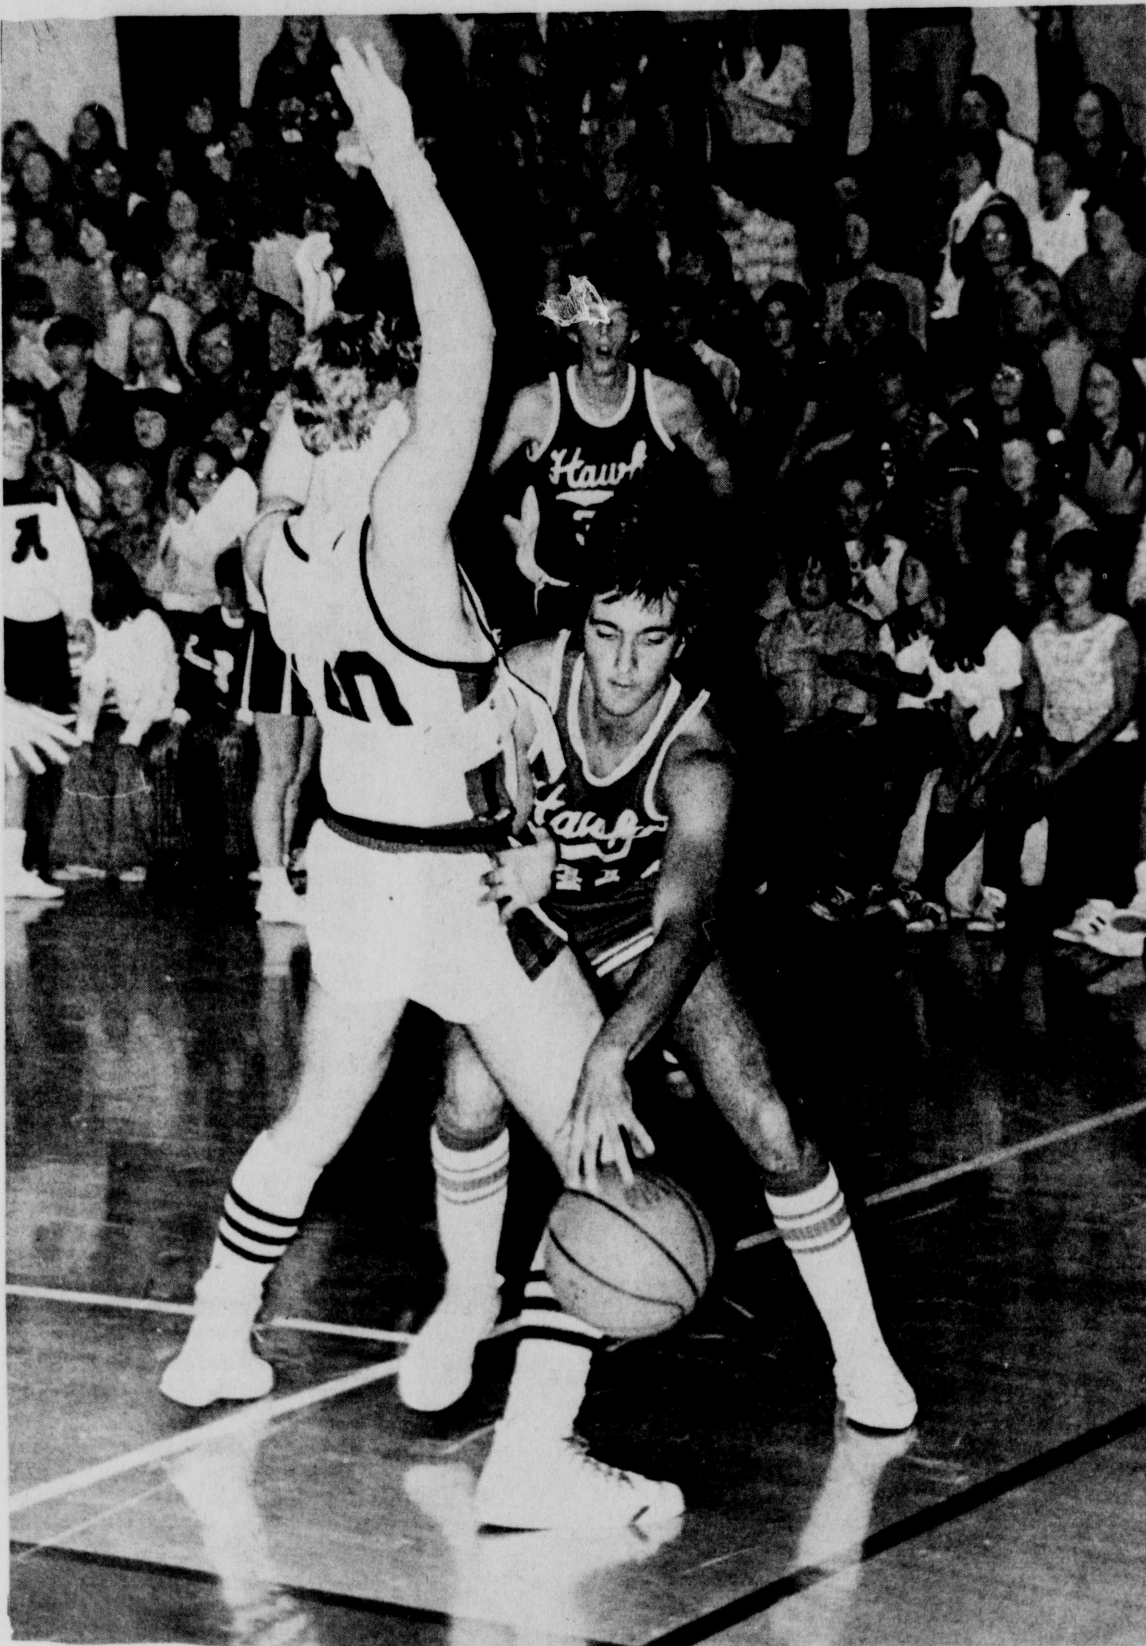

Throughout the game each team missed 10 free throw attempts. Amboy scored on 23 free throws, while the Hawks only scored on five.

Top point collector for the Clippers was Powers, who tallied 14 tallies on six buckets and two free throws. Four of Powers's points came in the first half. Esgar followed Powers closely, with 13 points on four baskets and five charity tosses. Five of Esgar's total points also were scored in the first half.

Mike Kump, top scorer for the Hawks, ended the evening with 13 points on five baskets and three free throws. Bocker, scoring all of his points in the first half, finished behind Kump with 10 points.

LA MOILLE—Randy Gonigam had seven points in the final quarter to help the Walnut Blue Raiders edge the La Moille Lions 54-53, here, Friday night in a Bureau Valley basketball game. It was the opening contest of the season for both teams.

Walnut jumped off to a 20-12 first-quarter lead but La Moille rallied to tie the game at half. The Blue Raiders had three starters in foul trouble. La Moille took a two-point advantage in the third quarter but Walnut out-scored the home team 15-12 in the final frame for the close victory.

Mike Munger tallied 18 points on seven baskets and four free throws, to pace Walnut in scoring. Gonigam ended with 15 markers. Steve Barkman dumped in 19 points and Brad Geuther 15 for La Moille. Walnut now returns home to face Malden on Tuesday.

Wooden assumes spectator role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Twenty-seven years after he coached his first game at UCLA, John Wooden viewed his first game as a spectator from a seat 15 rows directly behind the chair he made famous.

The 65-year-old Wooden, who officially retired after winning his 10th National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball title last year, applauded politely when the 1975-76 Bruins of new Coach Gene Bartow were announced.

However, Wooden was on the edge of his seat for the entire first half Friday night and admitted later, "Yes, it's a little difficult to be here. But it's great to be here watching these fellows."

"I became very attached to this particular group and I'm a little anxious about them."

Wooden was given a gala testimonial at Pauley Pavilion on his birthday Oct. 14 and the following day "we left on a Carri-

Even though the Chicago Bulls have lost eight games in a row, forward Bob Love is confident—not depressed.

"This is the longest losing streak I've ever had in my life, but we can laugh at it," said Love after Kansas City got 27 points from Nate Archibald and 23 rebounds from Sam Lacey in recording a 107-98 triumph over the Bulls Friday night.

"Nobody is tight. We can talk about it," he said. "It'd be a mistake to write us off. Each game we try to eliminate what we did wrong the last time. Tonight the forwards all played a good game—except me," he said.

Love scored 15 points but insisted, "I know I didn't do what I'm capable of doing."

Norm Van Lier played capably, contributing 27 points while Mickey Johnson added 24. But, for the eighth time in a row, it wasn't enough.

It's still no reason to panic, says Love. "I know we have a good team. We always hustle and never give up and we're capable of winning 12 or 13 in a row."

In the other National Basketball Association games, it was Boston 110, New York 101; Philadelphia 131, Portland 111; Detroit 104, Buffalo 94; Phoenix 107, Houston 92, and Los Angeles 116, Milwaukee 104.

Kings 107, Bulls 98
Archibald ignited a spree near the end of the third quarter with six straight points that broke a 67-67 deadlock and put the Kings in front to stay.

Celtics 110, Knicks 101
John Havlicek scored 28 points and Charlie Scott added 23 as Boston held off a New York comeback. Earl Monroe had 28 points and Walt Frazier had 27, but New York remained winless in its eight road games this season.

He said CBS wanted him to do some National Basketball Association games this season, but, "I didn't want to tie myself down for an entire season, so I decided against that. But I may do some of the NBC 'Games of the Week.'"

Wooden said he long had felt that upon his retirement he leaves a decent team for his successor and after the Bruins had demolished the Australian Olympic team 83-56 with an awesome display, week, returned to action and scored 17 points.

76ers 131, Trail Blazers 111
Billy Cunningham totaled 26 points as Philadelphia recorded its fourth straight victory. George McGinnis had 23 for the winners, Lloyd Neal had 20 for the losers.

Lakers 116, Bucks 104
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 30 points and pulled down 19 rebounds to carry Los Angeles past Milwaukee. Laker guards Lucius Allen and Donnie Freeman each pumped in 25 points as LA took its eighth consecutive game at home without a loss this season.

Milwaukee's scoring was led by Bob Dandridge with 28 points, ex-Laker Jimmy Price with 21 and rookie Dave Meyers with 18.

Pistons 104, Braves 94
Guar Kevin Porter whipped in 10 of his team-leading 17 points in the last period to pace Detroit over Buffalo. Porter also had 17 assists for a league high this season.

Bob McAdoo had 29 points for the Braves.

Suns 107, Rockets 92
Paul Westphal, with 22 points, and Keith Erickson, with 21, propelled Phoenix over Houston.

High scorer for the Rockets was Mike Newlin with 24, followed by Rudy Tomjanovich with 22.

Knox to lead Rams against Bears

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Closing in on their third straight divisional title in the National Football Conference, the Los Angeles Rams rate as 20-point favorites Sunday over the erstwhile Monsters of the Midway, the Chicago Bears.

Coach Chuck Knox, whose name was tied in with some cross-country speculation when the New York Jets fired Charley Winner, doesn't take the Bears lightly despite the overwhelming odds in the Rams' favor.

As an added problem, Los Angeles must play Chicago on Sunday on the Rams' home field and then travel to Detroit to battle the Lions in a Thanksgiving Day game.

"I've been with teams that have played the Bears many times and they have a great tradition," said Knox, who was an assistant coach at Detroit before becoming the head man with the Rams three seasons ago.

He'd also been an assistant with the New York Jets and that brought about the speculation that he might be interested in returning to Gotham.

Knox declared he had no comment on the reports, adding: "All I can say is that I am under contract to the Rams. It wouldn't make any sense for me to talk about working anywhere else—not while I have a season to prepare for."

Deer hunters on record pace

First day totals reveal that Lee County deer hunters are having a record year.

Wayne Weedman, manager of the Lee County Locker, Amboy, the official checkpoint for deer-hunters to report their success, told The Telegraph that 55 deer were reported killed Friday, the first day of the shotgun season in the state. Last year's total was 20 for opening day.

Weedman said that Friday's mark was the highest on record. "Most of the corn in the area has been harvested, reducing the cover. This may be a reason for the high deer kill so far this year," Weedman added.

Armchair quarterbacks question television tactics

NEW YORK (AP) — Sports network television is swirling into orbit on a near half-billion dollar binge, raising questions in the minds of captive armchair quarterbacks.

"How long can the present TV proliferation of baseball, football, tennis, golf and a variety of oddball sports continue?" "Are sponsor dollars getting tighter, presaging a possible cutback in weekend sports programming?"

"Are the big sports structures—baseball and football, particularly—captives of the networks? Do the Roone Arledges, Carl Lindemanns and Bob Wusslers, in their midtown skyscraper offices, call the tune for the big events?"

Bowie Kuhn, the commissioner of baseball, was chagrined at the suggestion that it was NBC, and not Bowie Kuhn, who dictated that postponed weekend games of the recent World Series should be played at night instead of during the day.

"The commissioner's office made the decision," he said. "We switched to night basically to reach more fans and benefit those who bought tickets. TV is important to baseball in a promotional capacity, bringing the game to the maximum number of people."

"Television represents only 10 per cent of our total revenue. We are not dependent on television for survival although we admit TV is enormously important in popularizing the game."

The commissioner's judgment on night play was justified when NBC research figures for the series showed a cumulative audience of 393,530,000 with an all-time record 75,930,000 watching the seventh game.

Kuhn said he had never considered it but, if necessary, baseball was capable of setting up its own network.

Undoubtedly so could the National Football League, which boasts the costliest and most desirable television package in sports and a sharp negotiator in Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Since becoming commissioner in 1961, Rozelle has extracted $606 million from the networks. Currently, the NFL is in the second year of a four-year contract calling for $60 million per year plus $3.5 million for the Super Bowl and $1.5 million for the Pro Bowl.

Thus, each of the 26 NFL teams is assured of a TV bonus each year exceeding $2 million. The pie is sliced 26 ways. Currently, the other major sports leagues do similarly with less money.

Baseball has just negotiated a new four-year contract with NBC and ABC for $92.8 million. The National Basketball Association is in the last year of a three-year, $27 million contract with CBS. The NCAA college football package cost ABC $15 million. NBC paid out $4.5 million to televise 90 NCAA basketball games.

In the present-day crunch of soaring prices, sky-high salaries and tight money, TV pays the freight for most, if not all, of the big sports teams. It is responsible for the multimillion-dollar contracts handed out to the Joe Namaths and Catfish Hunters. It is a source of survival.

A $42 million contract with NBC saved the old American Football League and enabled it to negotiate a merger with the National Football League. The World Football League, with no major network TV, folded.

The American Basketball Association, with such interesting personalities as Julius Irving, Artis Gilmore and David Thompson, failed to get a TV contract. The result has been loss of important franchises and a mad effort to make some sort of marriage with the NBA. Soccer, the most popular sport in the world but not yet a great crowd-pleaser in the United States, hasn't managed to interest the networks. Hockey has similarly suffered.

Network officials contend that hockey, like soccer, has only regional interest. "Hockey is the least dependent of all sports on network television," said Don Ruck, NHL executive. "The NHL has the highest saturation of its seating capacity and box office support."

The networks are at some variance on exactly what is salable on the market. They all agree that the big event—the World Series, the Super Bowl, the Kentucky Derby, the Masters golf tournament, Wimbledon tennis—will continue to lure the sponsor dollar. Their ideas run different directions when they get down to the lower echelon.

Carl Lindemann, sports boss at NBC, for instance, is a strong believer in presenting events without frills. "The game is the thing," he insists. He also is a stout booster of live TV—his network does considerably more than the other two.

Bob Wussler, the young head of CBS sports, argues that sports programming must be diversified enough to appeal also to the women and the young people in the house. So he has spiced up his shows with aesthetic music numbers and pretty faces.

Arledge, the ABC dynamo who introduced Monday Night Football and is making gestures toward trying to monopolize the business, has a scatter-shot philosophy. His "Wild World of Sports" jumps from a bus-leaping contest in Cincinnati to an auto demolition derby in Texas. But he's not so hot on tennis.

"People play and talk about tennis," says Arledge, president of ABC Sports, "but most people would rather watch wrestling."

The biggest of all single sports attractions is the Super Bowl—a one-day shootout for the NFL championship—although it can be topped, as this year, by an exciting seventh game of the World Series.

There is a $3.5 million price tag on the Super Bowl, over and above the regular $60 million per year contract. Sponsors must pay $230,000 a minute of advertising, compared with $100,000 per minute which NBC could demand this year for the most exciting of all World Series.

By comparison, commercial time for regular-season NFL games runs $48,000 per minute early in the season, $68,000 later, up to $92,000 for the divisional playoffs. League title games can demand $110,000.

These revenues must cover, for instance, the $16 million which NBC pays the NFL to show 86 games, plus three pre-season and three playoff games. ABC pays $11.5 for Monday Night Football. Such high revenues give the networks no special privileges in arranging the games, contrary to general belief. "We make the schedule," says Jim Kensil, Rozelle's top aide. "The schedule is made on the basis of how best to display the product to millions."

The networks are allowed breaks in the action to help hawk sponsors' products—interruptions which once antagonized but no longer antagonize viewers. Most times, these commercial breaks are slipped in during legitimate timeouts.

The blackout restrictions are imposed by Congress. The NFL prefers local blackouts, but Congress insists there can be no blackout if the game is a sellout 72 hours before game time. The NFL insists this erodes fan interest.

TV packages for lesser and special events vary. For instance, the U. S. Open Tennis Championships at Forest Hills, N.Y. were sold to CBS for $1 million over three years, with right of refusal on Davis Cup matches.

CBS paid $300,000 for the Jimmy Connors-Rod Laver match at Las Vegas last February but had to double the ante for Connors' challenge match against John Newcombe, charging proportionately for commercials—$30,000 and $60,000 per minute.

Advertising revenues for sports network TV soared over $300 million this year and may soar over $400 million in 1976, a big year with the Winter and Summer Olympics (ABC, $62 million total, already sold out).

Despite the economy, the networks still manage to extract advertising dollars for sports events. The sales thrust is aimed entirely at the men—automobiles, batteries, razors and the like. Companies such as Ford and Sears earmark between $15 and $20 million per year to catch the man's eye, particularly on weekends and Monday nights.

Trade reports are that the sports advertising dollar is holding firm.

The gauge-watchers, such as A.C. Nielsen and others, use intricate figures to determine the popularity of TV programming. On their scale, the Super Bowl is tops with a rating in the 40s, compared with the World Series 39.8, the Muhammad Ali-Ron Lyle fight 27.8, Monday Night Football between 19 and 21, the Kentucky Derby 18.9, Masters Golf 17, regular NFL football 13-14, weekly golf tournaments 9 and tennis 5.

These figures seem small—but when properly multiplied they add up to millions of viewers and millions of dollars for the pitcher with the high, fast ball and quarterbacks who can throw touchdowns.

"If you have a good product," says Rozelle, "you can sell it."

Canadian football crown decided Sunday

CALGARY, Alta (AP) — A feeling of quiet confidence prevades the camps of the Montreal Alouettes and the Edmonton Eskimos today as they taper off in their preparations for Sunday's Grey Cup game.

This is the third year in succession that the Eskimos have reached the Canadian Football League final, and the Alouettes are back for a second year, having won the Cup with a 20-7 victory over Edmonton in 1974 in Vancouver.

Neither team is overawed by the fact that it has got this far. The emphasis is on winning.

"We're not just satisfied to be here," said Alouettes Coach Marv Levy. "We came to win the Grey Cup."

"I know we'll be ready to play," said Eskimos Coach Ray Jauch, who is still looking for his first Cup, having been beaten by the Ottawa Rough Riders 22-18 in Toronto in 1973.

Refusing to betray any fear of losing three in a row—as the Alouettes did against the Eskimos in 1954 through 1956—Jauch merely said: "Win or lose, I won't be embarrassed by this team."

Edmonton has been installed as 3½-point favorite, but that's probably because, with the Grey Cup being played for the first time in Calgary, it's almost a home game for the Eskimos. Undoubtedly western supporters will be in the majority among the sellout crowd in McMahon Stadium.

Last year's game in Vancouver was played in heavy rain and the Alouettes, with quarterback Sonny Wade coming off the bench to direct a well-balanced attack, showed they could overcome the elements somewhat better than Edmonton.

Edmonton is easily the strongest passing team in the CFL, and the weather this year promises to be a little better than last. But Montreal out-gained the Eskimos by only a little better than 100 yards rushing—1,933 to 1,818. Edmonton has the only player in the game who gained more than 1,000 yards on the ground in Roy Bell, who rushed for 1,006 yards, compared with 893 for Montreal's Steve Ferrughelli.

If the wind forces the teams to go primarily with a ground game, the Eskimos might even have an advantage. They were

No. 1 against the rush this season, yielding 1,768 yards, while Montreal was No. 2 with 1,947.

If there is a key factor it could be the condition of defensive end Junior Ah You's right knee. Hampered in recent games by stretched ligaments, he reinjured his leg in practice Thursday.

"Junior's injury appears not as serious as we first thought," Levy said Friday. "I think he'll play."

Jauch has refused to say whether he will start Tom Wilkinson or Bruce Lemmerman at quarterback.

Southpaw Jim Kaat set a new White Sox record on May 9 when he won his 12th consecutive game. He had started the streak on September 4, 1974. During the period, he hurled 113 innings allowing only 89 hits, 17 earned runs, only 25 walks while striking out 76, for an astounding 1.35 ERA. It surpassed a previous club record of 11 straight originally established by John Rigney in 1939 and equaled by Gary Peters in 1963.

All-family event planned in Polo

POLO — All Polo area families are invited to attend the Thanksgiving turkey dinner in the Polo High School Sunday in observance of Illinois Family Week.

This event is sponsored by the Polo Community Council of Churches and the program will concern family living, by Charles Shedd. Shedd has written books and conducted seminars on family living. Persons are asked to bring food and table service for the family and coffee will be furnished.

The evening will include games for the whole family, special music by the Polo school children, a surprise musical number and the announcement of the winners of

Harvest Festival is scheduled

The Reynolds United Methodist Church will celebrate its annual Harvest Festival, Sunday.

An all-family scramble dinner will begin the event at 6 p.m. The evening program will follow the dinner and will include a travelogue on the "Holy Land," by Mrs. Adin Rounds. The evening will conclude with the giving of gifts to the glory of God, said the Rev. Ben Sattlem, pastor.

the Polo's Family Week contest and the awarding of the four Thanksgiving turkey prizes. Winners for the Family Week contest will be judged on the written survey of five things our family does or have done which have helped us be a better, closer family.

A high price might keep you from buying a new home.

But a low price shouldn't.

A Wausau Home costs thousands of dollars less than comparable homes. Because of the way we buy materials and the efficiency of our controlled building system.

For example, every Wausau Home is built with the finest grade kiln-dried lumber. 100% copper plumbing. Real ceramic tile walls and floors in the bath.

We buy the very best and we buy in quantity. Which lowers the price, not the quality.

And we build under the very best conditions, indoors, out of the weather.

Stop by for a close look at a Wausau Home. But don't let our low prices scare you. That shouldn't keep you from buying the new home you want.

Senior citizens form Federal Court Buffs

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Every walk of life has passed realistically before 75-year-old Frank Fitzgerald, a court buff who has been a trial watcher in the Federal Building since 1938.

Fitzgerald, however, now is in failing health and has given up his daily court appearances. But the founder of the Federal Court Buffs says 40 or 50 senior citizens are carrying on.

"We like to think we contribute something to the judicial system," says Fitzgerald, whose group of cronies gathers at the Federal Building in the morning, cases the trials coming up and chooses which to monitor.

"It's intriguing, like a mystery story, and it beats the pants off sitting home watching soap operas on TV," he said. "What better thing is there to do for a retired gentleman than sit in court every day and feel like you'd be missed if you weren't there?"

Fitzgerald, a former stock broker, said he attended his first trial in 1938 and was hooked. It dealt with counterfeiting and the mysterious burying of $20,000 in bogus bills near the 14th green of Tam O'Shanter golf course, he said.

"When I retired in 1963, I became a regular in court with the other retirees. Attending sessions became just like a job," he said. "Friendships with judges, prosecutors and defense attorneys were built. At Christmas time our group used to put on luncheons for the judges. Trials had a dramatic effect on us and we followed them closely from jury selection to opening statements and on through, even to appeals court. There were times when defense attorneys used us as warm-up juries and we would suggest, maybe, that they were becoming too argumentative or were attacking the witnesses."

There were times, said Fitzgerald, when the Buffs would question a judge's judgment on a case.

"In his chambers we would ask him to clarify his reasoning, writing it out for us," he said. "There would be meaningful discussions and we would offer suggestions. The judges would consider them and thank us. I like to think we were a stimulant to them."

Fitzgerald said he followed the Watergate hearings closely on television and had an exchange of letters with the committee chairman, former Sen. Sam Ervin.

"The senator sent me the entire transcripts—13 books—on the hearings," said Fitzgerald. "The Buffs attended the Chicago Seven Trial and to us it was nauseating how the defendants and their attorneys behaved in court. It was not a circus, as some people described it. It was a tragedy."

That trial, which stemmed from street disturbances at the 1968 Democratic convention, lasted for months. The defendants ultimately were freed.
